ALLIED DELEGATES LEAVE FOR PARLEY

Red Envoys Presumed Already At Kaesong; Air Attacks Resumed

TOKYO (Sunday) (AP)—Allied planes were ordered to resume military operations today (Sunday) against the highway left-clear-all-day-Saturday-for-use-of-a Communist delegation to go from Pyongyang to Kaesong for a preliminary parley with Allied envoys.

This indicated Allied belief that 19 hours of immunity from air attacks had afforded the Reds ample time to travel the 130 miles for today's scheduled meeting to arrange for cease-fire talks.

(From Seoul A.P. correspondents report that two U.N. helicopters had taken off for a point just south of the Imjin River to pick up Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's delegates, weather permitting. If the weather is bad the representatives will go by road.)

Still Recognize Neutral Zone

A five-mile radius around Kaesong continued to be recognized by the Allies as a neutral zone.

The talks are scheduled to begin sometime Sunday morning after 9 a.m. (7 p.m., E.D.T., Saturday).

Ridgway's headquarters will be represented by three colonels and two interpreters.

The Reds said they would send three officers, including a colonel, two interpreters and "reception personnel and assistants to Kaesong."

It is known the South Korean government is violently opposed to any end of the war that does not put all Korea under administration by the republic.

There was little action on the battlelines Saturday. The Eighth Army communique reported only

The Reds had sent word by radio that their motor convoy would leave Pyongyang at 5 a.m. Saturday. They were presumed to have arrived at Kaesong long before now, although there was no information whether they had actually done so, or even whether they had left Pyongyang.

At any rate, a spokesman at Tokyo headquarters said the route, which had been declared off limits to Allied attacks from 5 a.m., was now again subject to attack, effective Saturday midnight (10 a.m., E.D.T., Saturday).

Death For 11 In Crash Of Air Tanker

PRESTWICK, Scotland (AP)—A U.S. Air Force flying tanker, unable to land at Prestwick airfield because of low clouds, crashed and burned about 40 miles from here today, killing all 11 crew members aboard.

The plane was a reconverted four-engine B-29—fitted with fuel storage tanks and air-to-air refueling equipment.

The big plane spun out of the clouds with smoke trailing from it and crashed in flames in a wooded area near Carsphairn, Kirkcudbrightshire. Firemen had to pump water from a river 200 yards away to fight the flames which raged through the wreckage for more than two hours.

Headquarters of the U.S. Third Air Force at Ruislip, on the outskirts of London, said the crashed plane was based at Lakenheath, England, and assigned to the Second Bomb Wing.

The plane and its crew were in the United Kingdom for 90-day training under the Strategic Air Command's rotation training plan.

Red Convoys Feel Sting Of Night Raiders

EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea (UP)—U.S. warplanes struck for the second day today against Communist convoys pouring men and supplies from Manchuria toward the Korean front in a big Red buildup.

There was only light patrol sparring along the 100-mile battle line, with preliminary cease-fire talks only a few hours away.

Fifth Air Force night raiders, in action until dawn, claimed they destroyed or damaged at least 100 of the enemy vehicles clogging a 95-mile stretch of highway from Sinuiju, on the Manchurian border, to Sinanju, 40 miles above Pyongyang, capital of North Korea.

It boosted the two-day toll of enemy vehicles to 175.

RAKE AIRFIELDS

Warplanes also raked three Red airfields and supported United Nations troops feeling out enemy positions. The Reds were reported to have 350,000 men ready for a new assault if cease-fire talks fail. U.S. planes stayed clear of the 100-mile long neutral highway zone from Pyongyang to Kaesong, along which a Communist delegation moved south for the Sunday battlefield meeting.

The core area of the strengthened Communist force was north of the old Communist "iron triangle" of Chorwon, Kumhwa and Pyongyang.

U.N. officers marking the enemy build-up said: "We're just waiting... if we don't have a cease-fire, we'll have a fight on our hands."

Violence On Streets Marks Iranian Crisis

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Iran today pushed ahead with plans to take over the billion-dollar properties of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., following violent street demonstrations against a compromise suggested by the International Court.

Shouting "Death to Anglo-American Imperialists" and "Death to the Hague Court," bicycle brigades of 10,000 young pro-Communists rode through the city Friday night protesting the court's ruling that Iran suspend its nationalization laws. About 100 persons were injured.

The court recommended that a five-man board of two Britons, two Iranians and one neutral supervise activities until a compromise could be worked out.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's government denounced the court's decision and said it had no jurisdiction over the dispute between Iran and the British-controlled company.

British Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd delivered a note to Foreign Minister Bagher Kazemi today, asking Iran to abide by the court's ruling.

Iran then issued a statement saying the court's decision was not "valid." It did not formally reject the British suggestion which left the door slightly open for negotiations.

BRITISH WILL LEAVE

A government spokesman said Iranian oil commissioners hope to start control of the giant oil refinery at Abadan in two weeks and then move into the Khuzestan oil fields. A British embassy spokesman said Iranian rejection of the court proposals would make withdrawal of British technicians inevitable. Observers feel such a withdrawal would bring about a collapse of the oil industry.

The bicycle brigade ran to opposition from youthful members of the Labor Party, an offshoot of Mossadegh's national front. Both groups favor oil nationalization but are otherwise opposed.

Meets started in various parts of the capital as two groups fought each other with fists, sticks, knives and tree branches. There were many broken arms and legs but no deaths were reported.

The youths were in high spirits celebrating the end of Ramadan, the Moslem month of fasting.

At Abadan, the end of Ramadan was made the occasion for a parade by 2,500 goose-stepping government troops. Nearly the whole division which guards the Khuzestan oil fields paraded, showing off their U.S., British and Italian equipment.

Coming Here

OTTAWA—Sir Alexander Cluttenbuck, United Kingdom High Commissioner at Ottawa, is en route west and is due to arrive in Victoria July 19. He will attend the Calgary Stampede, and the opening of St. Mary's dam. He will be in Victoria from July 19-30, and hopes to make his visit "as much of a holiday as he can."

New Freight Rates Effective July 26

OTTAWA, (CP)—The railways are planning to put their latest freight-rate increase into effect July 26, it was learned today.

The 12-per-cent increase, estimated to yield the carriers $54,000,000 a year, was awarded by the Board of Transport Commissioners Wednesday. It is an interim measure, pending full hearings in the fall on the railways' request for more revenue to meet higher costs of labor and materials.

CLAIMS OBSCENITY

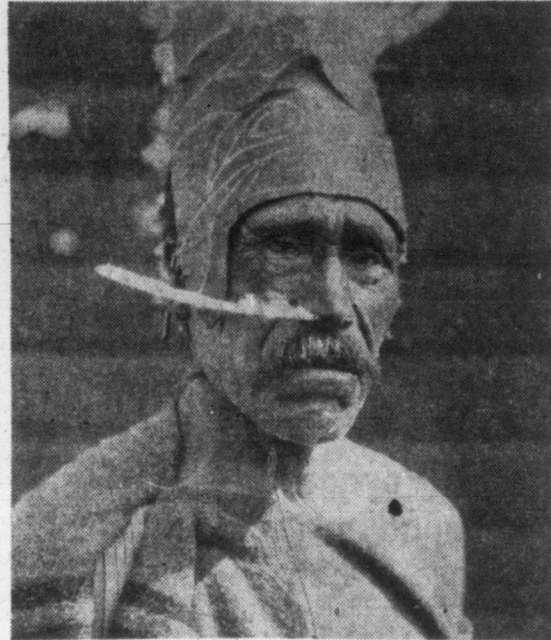

Sues For Film Taken Naked Amazon Natives

CHICAGO (AP)—A St. Louis man has sued the Eastman Kodak Company for $550,000, claiming it refused to return 200 feet of movie film he took on an expedition to South America. His lawyer said the company claims the films are obscene.

Denver M. Wright set the value of his film at $500,000 and asked an additional $50,000 for damages.

Wright's suit claims he took the films during a scientific expedition to the Amazon River region of South America. The films contain pictures of nude members of the tribe, Wright's lawyer said.

The suit contends the film was "an integral part of a movie which is the only recorded evidence of a primitive tribe which few white men have seen."

PRINCESS MAY SEE TSESHAHTS DANCE

Alberni Indians Ready To Present Tribal Ceremonies; Cowichans Plan Participation

A band of 50 Indians from Alberni offered today to come to Victoria in their colorful, brightly-beaded costumes to perform ancient tribal dances before Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip when they visit the capital on their Dominion tour in October.

The offer came from the Tsehaht tribe which has done much lately to revive interest in the almost forgotten ancient dances and folk songs of coastal Indians.

Chief Adam Shewish said the tribe would be "only too glad" to perform dances before the Royal couple if they are invited to do so by the federal government which is planning the itinerary for Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

"I'm sure the Royal couple would like to see the dances if they are given the opportunity," said the chief. "They have never seen Indian dances or heard our songs."

The chief said the dances could either be performed outdoors in Victoria, in the Memorial arena, or in Alberni if the Royal couple planned to visit that city.

Meanwhile, it was learned today that five other bands of Indians which make up the Salish or Cowichan tribe, would like to make Princess Elizabeth an honorary chief. The honor has never been bestowed upon a woman.

The last person to be made a chief was president Harry Truman on a visit to Vancouver Island in December, 1945. The president became Chief of Peace of the Cowichan Indians and was presented with a hand-drawn Indian sweater by the Duncan tribesmen who also staged a full-scale Indian festival for him.

10% B.C. Phone Rate Boost Gets Approval

Transport Commissioners Allow Interim Increase On Local, Long-Distance Calls

More than 30,000 Greater Victoria and some 10,000 other Vancouver Island subscribers of B.C. Telephone Company will "within a few weeks" begin paying an extra 10 per cent for local service, phone company officials said this afternoon.

Their statement followed an announcement from Ottawa that the Board of Transport Commissioners has just allowed the company to effect an interim rate increase of 10 per cent for local service and about 12 per cent on local distance calls.

Both Victoria and Vancouver officials of the company said today they had not yet received official word of the boost. They declared the company would undoubtedly file new tariff schedules soon with the transport board.

Victoria city and other Greater Victoria communities allowed the interim application to go through without formal protest, but plan to oppose a further increase of 2.5 per cent to be sought this fall.

Hearing on the further increase will start October 9 in Vancouver. Vancouver and various Up-Island municipalities will join in the protest at that time.

The authorized increases are basically the same as sought by the company at a hearing before the Ottawa board last Tuesday, and they are estimated to yield the company about $1,881,000 in additional revenue annually.

The company asked for the temporary increases to meet higher costs due to wage increases and new taxation. With said, its development program would be endangered.

Band Concert Sunday

H. J. Bigsby will conduct the Victoria Parks Band in a concert at Beacon Hill Park Sunday, from 3 to 4:30. Soloist will be John Dunbar and selection will be played from the works of Sousa, Victor Herbert and Von Suppe.

Princess, Prince May Reach Montreal Sept. 29

Preliminary itinerary of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip was learned by the Victoria Daily Times today from an unimpeachable Ottawa source.

The Royal couple plans to arrive in Montreal September 29 or 30 and proceed to Ottawa for "a few days." Thereafter they will go on to Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria.

(This schedule would indicate that the Prince and Princess would reach Victoria about Friday, Oct. 12, perhaps for the week-end of Oct. 13-14.)

Returning east, they will go first to Jasper. Then they will visit Edmonton, St. John, N.B., Halifax and St. John's, Newfoundland.

This schedule will be varied, The Times' source said, should President Truman invite the Royal couple to the United States.

(President Truman has already indicated that such an invitation may be forthcoming.)

In this event, Princess Elizabeth and her handsome consort will visit New York and Washington.

A committee from the External Affairs Department in Ottawa is making final arrangements, which must be cleared with Buckingham Palace.

It is expected that the complete itinerary will be announced in a day or so.

18 New Fires; But Situation Under Control

Forty-one forest fires were burning throughout British Columbia today but in practically all instances ranger patrols had them under control.

The Vancouver forest district, which covers the southwest section of the province, continued to give foresters most concern. There were 18 fires reported throughout the district at noon.

Although light rain during the week was sufficient to allow lifting of the forest closure order in effect earlier this week, hazard remains very high. In all other districts, where more rain has fallen, hazard this week-end is moderate to low.

10 ON ISLAND

Ten fires are still burning on Vancouver Island, although all are under control. The three big blazes at Campbell River still have yet to be extinguished, but the number of men engaged in combatting these fires has been cut from 700 to 455.

Two fires were reported from Pender Harbor today, one under control; the other near to control, with 45 men on guard.

During the past week 81 new fires broke out to add to the 42 which were continuing from last week. Eighty-two fires were extinguished during the week, leaving 41 still to be controlled.

According to figures maintained by B.C. Forest Service, there have been 585 forest fires since the beginning of the year. They have cost the provincial government $166,838 to fight.

At this time last year there had been 560 fires, which had cost $22,191.

Citizens Given Preview Of 'Air Raid' Attack

One of the largest mass formation flights ever held on the west coast roared over the city this morning as part of a giant training exercise.

Fifty-two fighters and bombers formed up at Abbotsford and shortly afterward were streaking over Vancouver and Victoria.

They were piloted by Royal Canadian Air Force reservists taking part in summer maneuvers.

The display was hailed by local civil defense authorities headed by Leonard G. Hatcher. The local group is at present campaigning for 3,000 recruits to be trained for air raid service.

Mr. Hatcher hopes to have 2,000 air raid wardens from these. He wants men and women volunteers.

The mass flight marked the end of the first week of summer encampment at Abbotsford.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

HOUSE OF LORDS
LONDON—Having visited the House of Commons on several occasions, I was delighted when Lord Pethick-Lawrence invited us to luncheon with him and then on to the House of Lords, where we had the further pleasure of meeting the sons of two former Governors-General of Canada, Lord Willingdon and Lord Tweedsmuir.

With the latter peer was his charming wife, Lady Tweedsmuir, who was hurrying to the House of Commons, of which she is the Conservative member for Aberdeen South, to take part in the debate on the Budget. Naturally, we chatted about Canada, for which all four possessed a warm affection. Incidentally, Lord Pethick-Lawrence has a brother living near Victoria and has a knowledge of British Columbia which dates back many years.

INFORMERS AND MEDIUMS

IT SO HAPPENED that my visit to the Upper House coincided with the final debates of the Common Informers Bill, which does away with the obnoxious professional informers, who, posing as champions of some particular cause, brought actions to enforce antiquated laws—and reaped substantial rewards in consequence. Viscount Simon, in the course of the debate, alluded to one man who had made £13,000 in one such action—and his victim had no redress.

The Lord Chancellor, Viscount Jowitt—who has also visited Victoria, by the way—recorded his pleasure that, while not altering the law in any respect, Parliament was "taking steps to prevent men of that kidney from carrying on this discreditable business."

PRESIDING OFFICER

PROPOSING his contribution to the debate, I noted that the position of the Lord Chancellor, while the presiding officer of the House of Lords, is also unlike that of the Speaker in that he is unable to call members to order.

Lord Lucan, who happens to be Parliamentary Secretary to the Secretary of State for Commonwealth Affairs, informed me that the active intervention of a Speaker is not needed since the peers habitually respect their own Standing Order, dating from 1638, against "abuse of speech."

This air of cosy informality—even in that very beautiful chamber so redolent of history—is heightened by the meagre attendance and the informal attitude of the Lord Chancellor, Viscount Jowitt, wearing black robes over silken knee-breeches, and a full bottomed wig, lounged, hands in pockets, on the Woolsack, and vigorously yawned from time to time. Behind him, several peers sat on the steps of the royal throne—this being their prerogative.

THE WOOLSAK

MY READERS who have not seen it may wonder what the Woolsack is. It is an oblong divan, about six feet by three, covered in deep red material, on which is placed a stiff cushion for the support of the Lord Chancellor's back. The Woolsack is said to have been placed in the House of Lords during the reign of King Edward the Third, and was originally nothing but a sack, stuffed with wool. Later it was stuffed with hair, but since 1938 has been restuffed with a blend of wool from the whole Commonwealth.

In front of the Woolsack are two other red divans, looking remarkably like a Hollywood bed, on which the judges sit, back to back, at the opening of Parliament—a rather uncomfortable seat, I imagine.

A.P. Exerts All Effort To Aid Jailed Reporter

NEW YORK (UP)—Denouncing the trial of newspaperman William N. Oatis as "an unconscionable act of injustice," the Associated Press said Monday night it is exerting "every effort" on behalf of its jailed correspondent in Czechoslovakia.

In a statement sent to all member newspapers, the AP's board of directors described Oatis, sentenced by a Communist court in Prague to 10 years in prison from "espionage," as a "competent reporter" who had been an AP staff member in the U.S. and abroad since 1937.

The State Department's Voice of America also protested the action against Oatis Friday in broadcasts beamed to Czechoslovakia. In a Voice of America speech, Rep. E. Edward Hebert, (D. La.), said it was "not the newspaperman who was convicted, but freedom of the press itself."

Austria Housewives 'In Arms' Over Meat

VIENNA, Austria (Reuters)—Police used truncheons to clear Vienna's main meat market today when several hundred housewives staged a near riot in protest against a sudden increase in meat prices, in some cases up to 25 per cent. The butchers claimed they were only passing on increases made by slaughterhouses.

Call Hearings On $30,000,000 Trail Project

Joint Commission On Columbia Basin Tour

TROY, Mont. (AP)—The six-member International Joint Commission, accompanied by U.S. and Canadian engineers, today began a two-week inspection tour of the entire Columbia River basin. The party today inspected the area to be flooded by the proposed $271,000,000 dam on the Kootenai River near Libby in extreme northwestern Montana. The commission takes jurisdiction over the dam since it would back water 42 miles into Canada and flood some British Columbia farmland.

During its tour, which will wind up at Portland, July 19 or 20, the commission will hold two public hearings on an application by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Trail, to build a $30,000,000 dam on the Pen D'Oreille River which would raise water levels in Washington State.

The first hearing will be at Waneta, B.C., July 12, the other at Grand Coulee, Wash., July 13-14.

The commission's American section is headed by A. O. Stanley, former Kentucky Senator. Gen. A. G. L. MacNaughton heads the Canadian section.

Arctic Voyage By Canadian Defense Group

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—

A $250,000 floating laboratory will sail from here shortly on a partly-secret voyage to the Arctic.

Capt. Tom Manning, skipper of the converted yacht Canolm II, is a zoologist. Mate Fred Barber is a hydrographer and engineer. Curt Merrell of London, Ont., is a geographer. The deckhands include two oceanographers, a biologist and a glaciologist.

The voyage is a project of Canada's Defense Research Board.

Captain Manning, an Englishman who built far northern bases for the Canadian Navy during the war, said basic research is the main object of the trip—soundings, weather observations, information for navigation charts. He declined to say what else is involved.

The vessel will remain in the Western Arctic after her summer's work ends in September. The crew of 28 will tie her up at the Eskimo village of Tuk-Tuk, near the mouth of the Mackenzie River, and fly home to work on compiling the data gathered.

Honor Ruth Draper

EDINBURGH (AP)—U.S. actress Ruth Draper received an honorary doctor of laws degree at Edinburgh University's graduation ceremony Friday. Others similarly honored included Air Commodore Sir Frank Whittle, inventor of the jet engine.

Married Girls In City Hall More Stable

Married women have generally proved more stable in jobs at City Hall than single women, according to one official who commented today on a mainland report that Vancouver city council was releasing seven married women from its social service department.

The reason given at Vancouver was that married women quit without warning, disrupting business of the department.

That has never been the experience at City Hall in Victoria, according to the official.

"If anything, the single ones have left us sooner," he said.

"Some women have given notice and asked if they could leave before termination of the notice, but they have been the single girls, not the married women."

As men are paid by the month and the women twice monthly—the latter a provincial government ruling—the men may leave on a month's notice and the women on two weeks.

"However, in most instances the women give a month," it was stated.

If a married woman leaves to raise a family, the employer is given considerably more notice than the usual leaving notice from a man or single woman, another official said.

"Trained single girls are just not available," said another. "And there doesn't seem to be any relief ahead."

There is an acute shortage of fully trained stenographers in Victoria.

"We have very few changes in our staff," said one official. "We try to treat them with courtesy and if for any reason they wish to leave employment, they usually extend us the same courtesy."

BRISTOL, Eng. (CP)—A judge groaned here when told that "minimal" was the modern adjectival form of the word "minimal."

Optimistic Air On Eve Of Peace Meet

U.N. Headquarters Ready For Trip To Kaesong Talks Sunday

U.S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea (AP)—A holiday air of excitement and hope swept through this headquarters today as time neared for the preliminary cease-fire talks in Kaesong.

Plans covering every foreseeable contingency had been revised a hundred times. They are open for further revision if anything unforeseen happens to pop up.

Seven helicopter men are standing by to carry Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's three emissaries to Kaesong Sunday if the weather is clear. If they are not used, three sergeants are ready to man jeeps to take the emissaries to the ancient former Korean capital, three miles south of the 38th Parallel.

Little more remained to be done.

Observers here feel that Sunday's preliminary meeting will settle little. They did not, however, rule out the possibility that the United Nations and Communist representatives might agree to halt the fighting while the main negotiations begin later.

Nearly all thinking here centered on the outcome of the main negotiations which start Tuesday.

It is out of that parley that the question of a peace may be settled.

A big question is the 38th Parallel, pre-war boundary between North and South Korea. Some speculate the U.N. will agree to withdraw to 38.

Some observers feel the United Nations might agree to a cease-fire only if they were given the right of aerial reconnaissance over North Korea to keep an eye on any possible Communist build-up. Theoretically the Communists would be given the same right over South Korea.

Most talk has been of successful negotiations. But what happens if the negotiations fall through?

As one U.N. officer put it succinctly: "We can expect an early attack."

Killed Twirling 'Unloaded' Pistol

SAN GABRIEL, Calif. (AP)—"I never fool with this thing when it's loaded," Frank Gibbisher, 42, told his bride of two months, as he twirled his pistol on his trigger finger. Just then, the gun discharged. A bullet through the head killed him, police reported.

Senator Seeks New MacArthur Support

Charges Dismissal Unjustified; Committee Members See Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Harry P. Cain sought bipartisan support today for a report claiming that dismissal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur was unjustified and charging that the State Department "pulled the rug" from under Nationalist China.

The Washington Republican apparently faced an uphill fight in lining up strong G.O.P. backing for his version of findings on the eight-week investigation of the MacArthur firing by the Senate armed service-foreign relations committee.

Cain's chances of getting some Democratic support seemed even less hopeful.

Chairman Richard B. Russell, D. Cal., told Cain that it would be at least two weeks before the investigating group could meet to consider a report because many members will be in Europe consulting with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

It was understood that the Cain document fell somewhat short of supporting in full MacArthur's program for waging the Korean war, including bombing of Red supply centres in Manchuria and use of Chinese Nationalist troops.

CLAIMS PRESSURE
Cain found that Mr. Truman fired MacArthur without military justification, and apparently under "pressure" from other nations, including some of the U.N. allies. The report also held that the committee has not yet learned all of the reasons surrounding the dismissal.

Some committee members have opposed any report on the group's findings. However, Cain circulated among some of his Republican colleagues a strongly-worded document which:

1. Declared there was no "military justification" for MacArthur's dismissal but no question about President Truman's legal authority to fire MacArthur.

2. Criticized the nation's post-war China policy as riddled with missteps which led to the downfall of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and in which the lack of more effective U.S. material and moral support played a major role.

3. Attacked the administration for failing to order continuous bombardment of the Communist supply centre of Pashan and "hot pursuit" of enemy aircraft across the Manchurian border—regardless of opposition to such action by America's United Nations allies.

4. Scored other U.N. nations for failing to furnish more fighting men in Korea while at the same time "demanding a potent voice in policy decisions on conduct of the war."

GERALD COGHILIN

'Canada Held In High Respect In Europe'

Canada and her government are highly thought of in Europe, Gerald R. Coghlin, M.B.E., foreign correspondent for Reuters News Agency, said here yesterday.

"Your government came through the war with a clean slate and a good reputation," the noted newsmen said.

Mr. Coghlin, who works for the European Daily Mail as well as Reuters, is staying with friends in Victoria for a week's holiday. Born in Canada, he has spent most of his life in England and Europe, making his present headquarters in Bern, Switzerland. His job requires him to spend a lot of time in France, where the European Daily Mail is published, and in Italy.

"Italy—good shape," he noted. "France—poor shape; Germany is, as they say in France, 'comme si, comme ça, or so-so.' This was the quick overall picture he drew of conditions on the continent today.

"The general opinion among the people in these countries is there will be no war. The German people, particularly, don't want a war," he said. "If there was a war the consensus is that Germany would be of no help and would go under the Iron Curtain immediately."

England, where he was only a few weeks ago, is tired of socialism, he thought. "Everywhere I went, everyone I spoke to confirmed by suspicion. They all say they're not socialists. Then ask them whom they voted for in the last election and they back-track and 'hum and haw' but won't confess," he explained. "If there was an election today I should think the Conservatives would carry the country by 30 to 40 seats."

A keen student of foreign affairs, he sketched through a host of British statesmen with whom his work brings him in contact. "One of the ablest men in the Conservative Party today is Beverley Baxter, who as you know is a Canadian," he thought.

Churchill, whom he had watched in action, is in good health, Mr. Coghlin noted.

"He looks fit and people hope that he will be able to lead the

Canada Rifle Shots Retain Bisley Trophy

BISLEY, Eng. (Reuters)—Canada, by a margin of nine points, today retained the British 400 Club trophy for small-bore rifle shooting which they won last year.

The match, which is open to teams from the colonies or Dominions, consists of 40 shots per competitor: 20 at 500 yards and 20 at 100 yards.

The final scores out of a possible 1,600 were: Canada, 1,580; South Africa, 1,571; India, 1,562. Detailed Canadian scores were: S. Sgt. R. Chandler of Vancouver, 392; Lieut. G. A. Colville of Winnipeg, 395; Lieut. G. S. Boa of Toronto, 398; Sgt. N. Walker of Toronto, 395.

In a friendly match with Britain firing 10 shots at 50 yards and 10 at 100 yards, Canada lost by 1,181 points to 1,190.

Strong Denial Given Charges Of U.S. Spying

Hungary Attempting Propaganda Coup

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States today rejected as "a tissue of falsehoods" Communist Hungary's charge that three members of the U.S. legation in Budapest are spies.

In an unusually blunt note to the Hungarian Foreign Office, this Government said the "preposterous" charge was made "only to serve the propaganda aims of the Hungarian Government."

The charges originally were made at the espionage trial of Catholic Archbishop Josef Groesz who has been sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment.

"In the view of the U.S. Government," the note said, "the proceedings in the trial of Archbishop Groesz established nothing except the fact that the Hungarian authorities are continuing by ruthless and unconscionable measures to terrorize the Hungarian people into mute submission to the existing regime and its totalitarian program."

"In this instance, as on many past occasions the Hungarian Government has contrived a tissue of falsehoods in a brazen though futile attempt to justify before the world its continuing campaign to crush all dissent and to suppress the human rights and fundamental freedoms of its citizens."

Hungary last Monday accused the three Americans—Legation secretary Albert W. Sherer, Jr.; Ruth Tryon, head of the U.S. Information Service in Budapest, and Miss Tryon's secretary, Mary Eich—of spying and demanded their recall. They have left Hungary.

The U.S. note said that this government, without accepting the Hungarian charges against the three, has dropped certain informational activities which Hungary found objectionable.

Field Still In Custody; Bail $10,000

NEW YORK (UP)—Millionaire Frederick Vanderbilt Field, gilt-edged angel of the Communist party, spent the night in jail for contempt of court but hoped to be released soon provided his left-wing cronies could raise $10,000 bail.

Field, who supplied bail money for many imprisoned Reds, was sent to jail Friday for refusing to give information which might lead to the capture of four fugitive Communist leaders who were to have gone to prison.

Immediately after Field was summarily sent to jail, attorneys for the great-grandson of Cornelius Vanderbilt rushed to New Haven, Conn., for a hearing on a petition for bail for Field. Federal Court of Appeals Judge Thomas W. Swan set out court in a room at Yale University and signed a temporary order late Friday permitting the millionaire to be released on $10,000 bail pending an appeal from the 90-day contempt of court sentence.

Young Housewife Tells Of Red Spy Activities

Former Hairdresser Worked For F.B.I. Seven Years; Joined Communist Party In States

WASHINGTON (UP)—Mrs. Mary S. Markward, a spy young housewife, described today nearly seven years of spying on Communists for the F.B.I. as nonchalantly as though she were chatting in a beauty parlor.

Slight, chestnut-haired and looking younger than her 29 years, Mrs. Markward regarded her career as an F.B.I. informer as just chance that came her way to serve her country. Clad in a yellow cotton dress and apron in her nearby Chesterbrook, Va., home, she looked more like a coed than a spy. Her bricklayer husband, George, and four-year-old Christine chimed in occasionally as Mrs. Markward told of her spying activities.

"When the F.B.I. first contacted me," she said, "I don't know why. I have reason to believe I know now, but I don't feel free to divulge it. They approached me as a loyal American and I volunteered to join the Communist Party. I thought I could best serve my country by joining and forwarding whatever information was available."

Secret testimony on June 11 before the House Un-American Activities subcommittee revealed Mrs. Markward's work for the first time Friday. She told how she joined the party here in 1943, eventually becoming treasurer of a policy-making unit.

UNDERGROUND GROUPS
She told the subcommittee there were 18 Communist clubs in Washington with about 230 members. Although it was party policy to drop from the rolls any members who worked for the government or had relatives in government service, there were at least two underground groups of government workers, she said. One cell, known as "W37," was composed of 12 employees of the Washington Navy Yard.

The house committee has called Mrs. Markward to testify again in open session next Wednesday.

Mrs. Markward's Communist adventure began one day in 1943 while she was working in a Washington beauty parlor. An F.B.I. agent contacted her and later went to her home and asked if she would work for her way into the party. She did.

WAS'N'T AFRAID
Mrs. Markward wasn't afraid for her personal safety during seven years of spying, and she isn't afraid now.

"The Communists like to glamorize themselves and make people think they are real cool and dagger artists," she said. "There really isn't so much of that. Besides, if this country lost a war with Russia many of us would likely face a firing squad anyway."

Only her husband and mother knew about her F.B.I. work.

Missouri City Hit By Floods

TUSCUMBIA, Mo. (UP)—The Osage River—seven feet above flood stage—boiled over its banks and poured four feet deep into Tuscumbia today.

More than 15 blocks were under water and the neighboring farmland also was inundated causing widespread damage to corn and oat crops.

The area was drenched by tremendous rains which built up to almost 10 inches during a 36-hour period.

They filled the Bagnell Dam, 15 miles to the southwest, and much of the water in Tuscumbia came from the dam because its flood gates had to be opened periodically to relieve the pressure from the heavy inflow.

Tuscumbia's general store—hub of the community—was under water.

After The Hysterics

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE HAVE proved once again that they have more sense than many foreigners give them credit for. When the MacArthur debate began most of the world was terrified by an outward look of hysteria in the United States, the spectacle of the most powerful democracy apparently going right off the rails. Those who understood the Americans knew that the hysteria was superficial and would soon pass. It has passed already. While General MacArthur continues his triumphal tour, the nation settles down to the hard, steady task of world leadership.

Now that the great debate can be seen in reasonable perspective two results are clear: The Truman Government has been greatly damaged both by General MacArthur and by the simultaneous revelations of the Kefauver committee; but the Government's foreign policy has survived against every attempt to reverse it. And that policy seems to be paying off in Korea sooner than anyone expected.

What happens to the political fortunes of any American President or party is strictly the concern of the American people and none of the outside world's business. What happens to American policy, since the United States is the dominant force in the free world, concerns every living person and will affect millions yet unborn. What has happened in the MacArthur affair gives the free world a new sense of stability and a new faith in the American people. They have not been diverted from their course either by those who would push them to the edge of total war, perhaps over the edge, or by those like Mr. Hoover, who would persuade them into an impossible isolation. The Government's policy of military strength without provocation, of avoiding any act which would divide the United States from its allies, goes forward, unchanged. The tumult and the shouting have altered nothing of importance.

Thus once again things have failed to turn out as the Russians hoped. Knowing little of the American mind, the Politburo must have seen in the MacArthur debate the golden chance for which it has waited so long—a United States split internally and divided from its allies abroad. The Russians, like so many other foreigners, underestimated the American intelligence.

When it became clear that the United States was not falling to pieces, Russia proposed a truce in Korea. That can hardly have been a coincidence. Even though a Korean truce, if it is secured, can be at best only an incident in the world struggle, it will at once discredit General MacArthur's main thesis—that the Korean war must be carried into China or end in hopeless stalemate. Much more important, it will demonstrate the power of the allies when they stand together and refuse to be shaken off balance by the temporary excitements of domestic politics. In short, given time and information, democracy can usually be relied upon to reach a sound decision in the end.

A Canadian Comes Home

PROFESSOR A. R. M. LOWER, CANADA's greatest historian and author of "Colony to Nation," Canada's best history and possibly its finest book, has just made a naked personal confession in MacLean's Magazine. Canadians should note it well as a revelation of their national nature.

For a long time Professor Lower was bitterly dissatisfied with Canada, which he understood as well as any man, and moved to the United States. There he seemed to find what he wanted—a rich culture, the mature civilization of New England, a broad, stimulating climate of thought which he never found here. Still, something in Canada always called him home.

Home he came to Winnipeg and there, in the University of Manitoba, he endured a kind of intellectual waste land. His position was "inconspicuous and ill-paid, its working conditions at times intolerable." His fellow citizens "entertained a deep contempt for the more subtle shadings of civilization." For most Canadians books were "strange objects to be avoided when possible, abstract ideas, causes of deep suspicion." Nevertheless, on the desert of Canadian life Professor Lower survived and, moving into his native Ontario, he seems to have achieved contentment at last. He has also achieved, in his book of history, a unique insight into the Canadian mind. He finds that mind still pretty backward. As he shows in his book, he sometimes is assailed by dark doubts about the future of Canada. Still, he is glad to be home and would never live anywhere else again.

And why, he asks, does he, like other exiled Canadians, find Canada more attractive than other nations richer in money, culture and ideas? Because here, as nowhere else, a man can play his part in building a nation, a unique growth, a new thing upon the earth. This, he says, is "fun" of a sort denied to the people of all nations already built and crystallized into a permanent mould.

Canada has not shaped itself as Professor Lower desires. His book is full of disappointment, frustration and regret for what might have been. One judges, however, from his latest profession of faith, that he feels a little better about the present and future of Canada than in the prairie days when he wrote "Colony to Nation."

At least he can see in the Massey report and its yeasty effects throughout the nation that Canada has begun to interest itself in that region of ideas which seemed so far off and alien a few years ago. Perhaps in his mature years he begins to suspect that a nation which refuses to grow up into the shape which professors describe for it still can grow in another shape as good or better.

To men like Professor Lower, who reveal its nature, Canada owes much. But they owe much to Canada. For Canada has given them their chance, even if it has been given slowly and niggardly, to participate in a high adventure, a work worthy of their labor and their talents. To all Canadians, within their abilities, the same chance is given and the same satisfaction is assured. Most of them lack Professor Lower's erudition, his gift of words and his healthy sense of protest but his sudden discovery is not new to them. They know that this is home.

Of Lasting Value

THERE HAVE BEEN A NUMBER OF successful attempts to strengthen the ties between Great Britain and the Dominions by providing facilities for study or travel in the various countries. Some of them, such as the Rhodes scholarships, have had through the years a cumulative effect of considerable importance. Fostering of such associations through financial aid is a project which might well commend itself to any philanthropist, benefitting as it does both the individual students and the participating nations.

Such no doubt was the thought which prompted the late Mr. James P. Cramer of Ottawa to set up a fund by which selected boys from Canada could be educated in Scotland. The scholarships, believed to be the first of their kind, provide for attendance at Cargillfield preparatory school and Pettes College, near Edinburgh, at both of which institutions Mr. Cramer received instruction in his early years.

The eight-year course offered would be almost entirely covered by the scholarships and provides opportunity for a public school education of the British type which should find many applicants. Mr. Cramer has chosen a lasting and worthy form of memorial whose beneficial effects should be projected far into the future.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

THE OTHER day I met a girl named Charity. I had run across the name two or three times in a life not especially devoted to meeting people. But each time it gives me a fresh shock. I suppose that once a name gets into a family, it becomes a sort of stubborn tradition to keep it going.

There is nothing wrong with tradition... on the contrary, we haven't nearly enough of it. There is nothing wrong with charity, either, provided it isn't organized and cold-blooded charity, with a kind of self-seeking and profitable efficiency about it. There is something wrong, of course, about using the word charity (in the Authorized Version) in the 13th Chapter of 1 Corinthians. The word love is far more endearing, as well as more exact, and is used in other versions. "Charity suffereth long, and is kind." I should just jolly well think so. The word itself suffereth long. I imagine that anyone named Charity also suffereth long... one complete lifetime, in fact.

THE WORD once meant a sort of dearth... in the affectionate and not the financial sense, though charity comes mighty dear in some instances. In the Latin Bible the Greek word for love was translated as caritas (charity) to avoid the sexual suggestion of amor, the ordinary word for ordinary love. But since it has lost the endearment, it might as well be scrapped, or turned over to some welfare outfit. Meanwhile, poor innocent girl babies still get christened with that astounding name from time to time, without themselves or their parents having the foggiest notion of what it's all about.

STILL, there could be worse names. And there are. It is fashionable, for example, to call a girl Gillian or Jillian or however you care to spell the silly word. It is supposed to be a diminutive of Jill, which in turn came from Juliana, a popular name in Middle English. But if anyone is so fond of Middle English, she might as well learn that a gillian (or a Jill) soon came to mean any woman, and after that it began to mean a woman whose morals were no better than they should be. A gillian was a babe or a doll or a dame, and then something a bit naughtier. And that being so, I'd far sooner be a Charity than a Gillian.

WELL, if the Puritan name of Charity has not quite died out, we can be thankful that other Puritan names have gone completely out of fashion. In our little history books at school (all written by ill-read men) we all gazed in fascinated horror at the name of Praise-God Barbopne, the scourge of the established church... who was so enthusiastic that even Cromwell had to get rid of him. (His real surname was probably Barbon, so he might even have been a Bourbon, much removed.)

But there were Christian names just as fantastic as his. I myself had two ancestors in New England, long ago, whose names were Experience Fisher and Submit Phillips. If you can get any sillier than that, I'd love to know how. I'm only surprised that they didn't name some of their daughters Startling Values or Slashing Reductions or Special For One Day Only, in those days when nomenclature was simply an insincere and inaccurate form of advertising.

Men are so different from women; They bring dirt into the house with their feet. Women say men do it. So the women are right. The thing is not seriously contested. Mr Peeps' Diary

Being A Chronicle Of Our Times

MONDAY, 1st—This day marking the birthday of my country, I put out flags. And I praised God to live in a country so fine, so gloriously free, so blessed with riches, so peaceful, and so habited by sound and excellent persons.

TUESDAY, 2nd—I sat me down to lunch with Master David Armstrong at the Pacific Club, which commands a most excellent sweeping view of this city. We ate a shrimp salad, and at a loss to determine which would play host, and proffer the layings-out, we tossed a coin; which came up obverse, and I joyed me in a free meal at the hands of this canny entrepreneur. At my office came a copy of the Massey Report, handsomely turned in black binding, which I shall read forthwith. My supper was a ragout, simple but enough. In the evening, I wrote a bit and, feeling slothful, took me early to the sheets.

WEDNESDAY, 3rd—I woke with a pain in me gizzard and a plague on't, which hath tormented me these five months. To lunch with Messrs. Edwin Pearlman, John Meville, Cyril Wightman and Thomas Bailey; we discoursed of affairs with great dispatch. Thence to the airport to greet Master Bell. The rest of my day was concerned with reckonings. My supper was taken from a stool; poached eggs and ice cream, the sheers' folly to consume. Anon to the Junior High School where His Worship, in a blue suit and Hamburg hat, lunged at a gutta percha ball to open the Gyo Carnival, a most worthy undertaking which will benefit this city and its people. His Worship made assiduous practice, and anon was cuffing the ball directly in most seemly fashion. Strolling through the grounds, I saw Mistress Gregory, Mistress Acres and Mistress Abernethy vending wieners in a roll, for the good of charity, and a tasty snack this proved. In another booth, I found Master Fraser and Master Heaney conducting with great glee a game of chance, which I played, but quitted ere they relieved me of my underthings. The sound of children on the swings was pleasant to the ear and I left, much heartened by the good humor and blithe spirits of this amiable company.

THURSDAY, 5th—Comes to me this morning Master Ed. Farey, who hath shucked off his beard for a disguise of spoked glasses, which he needs lest foolish women strew themselves at his feet as he strolls our boulevards. By and by comes Master Harvey Harris, wearing a cravat of electric yellow, to discourse of Buttle Lake, whose primeval beauty he would maintain, and a merry row-de-dow this promises to be. Anon came Master Ted Anderson, handsome in a light beige suit, most timely for this weather, with plans for entertainment of 42 British journalists, which is most courteous and gallant; and in keeping with the hospitality of this city. By carriage with R. H. B. Ker to his country estate. We sat on his patio and ate sandwiches, and much admired the prospect of yachts becalmed in Arbutus Bay below, a delight to the eye. Anon we strolled in his garden, plucking ruby-rich cherries from a tree, most excellent to the palate. Thence to the courts, where I listened with sorrow to the tale of Master Milledge, most heart-wracking to his auditors. Greatly downcast, home for a bath and change into fresh linen. By carriage to the hotel to witness the installation as Rotary president of Master George I. Warren, whose infectious boy-grin mirrors the genial approach of this good fellow to his friends and his community work. I chatted with Master and Mistress Walter Luney, who celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary in 13 months, and a sprightly pair they are. I much admired the singing of a handsome Scot, by name Jock Dunbar, in particular when he sang "The Road to the Isles"; and when he blended his voice with that of Mistress Waddell in a beautiful melody called "If I Loved You." We saw a splendid film called "Water, the Fountain of Life," and came out of the hotel to find it raining, which caused much happiness and some mirth.

FRIDAY, 6th—There was a brief shower this day, but it soon turned fine, and I left me cloak at home. At the hotel, I took lunch with Master Fred Hinke and Master Everett Drumright, of the U.S. foreign service, the only of Oklahoman I ever met who can speak the tongue of the north Chinese. He spoke of recent visits to Korea, and Mr. Synghman Rhee, and said that these hapless, unfortunates must be united into one country, which we pray God may come about. At my office, placed a call for Master William Campbell, in the hope that he would come to my abode and fashion a closet for the hanging of my jacksonapes coats and satin trews. But he was on vacation, which means that my suitings must hang betimes under the taffetas and silks of my wife, and I will be sore pressed to extricate them. Alas, the husband's burden! So melancholy in heart and much wearied, to the country for a snack, and a laborer's repose.

Yugoslavia Offers Chance Of Quick Armament

By JOSEPH ALSOP from Belgrade

AFTER MANY MAKESHIFTS, THE question of what to do about Yugoslavia is evidently being faced at last in Washington. Warning of grave danger of war, the Yugoslav Chief of Staff, Gen. Keca Popovic, has just asked for a massive grant of American military equipment. A substantial program of additional economic aid for Yugoslavia is also being discussed.

These two parallel efforts to strengthen Yugoslavia are likely to cost several hundreds of millions of dollars, which can hardly be asked of Congress without a major policy decision. Moreover, the vital arms program is, also likely to raise issue of priorities as between Yugoslavia and Western Europe, which may bring our other allies into the debate.

The first reason for resolving the argument in Yugoslavia's favor is very simple indeed. There is no cheaper way of buying insurance against an early war starting in Europe.

At present, as has been suggested in previous reports in this space, the future danger here must be regarded as very great. This country is a centre of heresy, which the Masters of the Kremlin long to stamp out. It is also a strategically vital position. The conquest of Yugoslavia will neutralize the Greek and Turkish armies, will frighten the Middle East into Soviet arms, bring down the existing Italian government, and will destroy the whole Western position in the Mediterranean. For these reasons, in short, conquest here will put the Kremlin three-quarters of the way along the road to conquering Western Europe.

EASILY SEIZED

Furthermore, the Masters of the Kremlin must at present believe that this great prize can shortly be seized with relative ease and safety. The Soviet intelligence, which invariably lies to its masters on these subjects, is certainly telling the Kremlin that the Yugoslav Army is weak and that the masses are disaffected. The surrounding satellites are building-up great military strength.

What could be more tempting, then, than to try for a quick attack on Yugoslavia by Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary, with the hope of finishing the job while London and Washington and Paris were wringing their hands and the United Nations was debating the crisis?

It is all too likely that this is the way the Kremlin sees the matter. The tremendous efforts the Russians are making to divide and paralyze the Western alliance are clearly intended to open the way for new moves. The massive rearmament of the satellites is also clearly preparatory. Next spring, when the maximum benefit has been won from the attacks on Western unity, and when the satellite rearmament has been completed, will be the time of danger. And the place of danger will be here in Yugoslavia.

If this analysis is correct, there is not much time left to make the Kremlin see the matter in a different light.

One easy way to change the Kremlin's mind, of course, would be for London and Washington to make it very clear indeed to Moscow that they no longer see any difference between Soviet aggression by proxy and Soviet aggression. But this bold step will certainly be impossible unless there is a change of government in London. There are even reasons to suspect that the present Labor cabinet, besides being unwilling to state its intentions in advance, might seek to treat a satellite attack on Yugoslavia as a "local incident" when actually confronted with the challenge.

In these perilous circumstances, the chance of an attack on Yugoslavia can only be reduced by strengthening Yugoslavia by all means possible and as rapidly as possible. Thus the Kremlin may lose hope of an easy conquest; may see the risk that a long local war will turn into a world war, and may hold its hand. Thus, in short, the greatest single danger in Europe today can be fairly effectively guarded against.

But there is another, non-local reason for the heavy investment in Yugoslavia that is now proposed in Washington. In the simplest terms, we have embarked upon a great and costly effort to build up military power on our side of the Iron Curtain. Naturally we want the best possible return on our money and resources. From this viewpoint, also, Yugoslavia offers a remarkably good bargain.

FIGHTING QUALITIES

The fighting qualities of the people are attested by their bloody and courageous history. They now have 32 divisions, which American officers who have seen the Yugoslav Army at close range, rate very high in quality, both as to morale and as to training.

Their only weakness is in equipment, and especially in the heavy equipment they have been unable to obtain since their break with the Kremlin. Marshal Tito has declared that his country will enter the war, and these divisions will come into play against the enemy, in the event of Soviet aggression anywhere in Europe. And this force lies squarely on the vulnerable flank of the Soviet empire.

It is only necessary to compare the investment needed here with the gigantic investment that is being made, to bring into being at a time very far in the future a European army not much larger than the army of Yugoslavia. It is only necessary to consider how much cheaper it is to buy strength here than it is, for example, in France. It is only necessary to realize that this strength in Yugoslavia can, relatively speaking, be created almost overnight.

All these considerations point to the conclusion that we ought to have our heads examined, if we do not jump at the opportunity offered us here.

New Problems Of The Armistice In Korea Must Not Hide The Old Threat In Europe

By MICHAEL BARKWAY, Correspondent of Saturday Night and the Victoria Daily Times, From Ottawa

OTTAWA is very hopeful about the Korean truce, though very much aware of the difficulties which still have to be solved. The vital thing, it is thought here, is to keep the arrangements for an actual cease-fire in the field quite separate from the peace negotiations which must follow. Each stage has its peculiar problems, but if they can be managed separately neither should be insoluble.

Even at the first stage—that of the military truce—we are liable to run into trouble over the status of the United Nations. To the Western powers, and especially perhaps to the United States, the United Nations is the embryo world organization which must supervise all international arrangements of this kind. It is, to some extent, the judge as well as having been the policeman. To the Chinese, on the other hand, the United Nations is bound to appear as one of the parties to the dispute. The Chinese, indeed, would probably call the U.N. the defendant and the Chinese themselves the plaintiff.

If the fighting is to be stopped it is no good getting into an insoluble argument about this. The suggestion which is offered to break the deadlock is to find one individual who can be agreed between the Chinese and the U.N. powers, and to let him be made responsible for supervising the truce arrangements. He might even be empowered to go a stage further and start the preliminaries for the peace negotiations.

This method of procedure would enable the Chinese to feel that the U.N. was not trying to act as both judge and party to the dispute. Yet from our point of view the individual who received a mandate from the U.N. itself would be entirely acceptable: U.N. has often done this before, as in Mr. Ralph Bunche's mission to Palestine and the various mediators appointed to deal with the Kashmir dispute.

As usual it will not be easy to find the right man. Our own foreign minister, L. B. Pearson, has been mentioned, and it is just possible that his efforts on the U.N. Cease-Fire Committee last January might commend him to the other side. But it seems more probable that he is too closely associated in their minds with the United States and with the U.N. itself.

The Indians might well provide a man—Sir Benegal Rau, or some other—who would be satisfactory to the Chinese and the North Koreans; but Washington would not welcome an Indian at this stage. Mr. Nehru's government has been, in American eyes, too much on the other side.

The choice may therefore narrow down to Sweden. Or some other way may be found to satisfy the ideals of the United Nations without making Chinese acceptance impossible. But the most likely solution certainly seems to be the appointment of a mediator or conciliator.

Once we are over this hump and a truce has been arranged, the next problem is to arrange the peace talks in some way which provides a chance of success. Considerable delay might prove helpful in softening the opposing positions of the Chinese and the Americans, and in composing the known differences between the Western allies and the probable, but unknown, differences between China and Russia.

BUILD UP STRENGTH

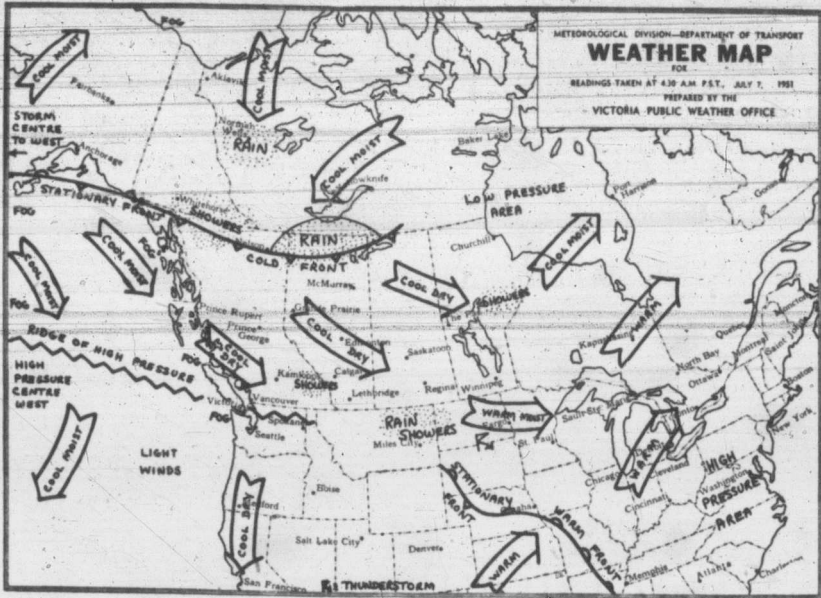

While the uncertainties of these negotiations perplex the prophets, one thing Ottawa holds to firmly. If the fighting ends in Korea, the Western powers will have increased opportunities to build up their strength in Europe. Those opportunities must be seized.

Some well-informed people here, both in the Canadian Government and in the diplomatic missions, fear that a cease-fire in Korea might be the sign for a renewed Russian push in Europe. Others think that the Russians will try to lull the West into a relaxation of its efforts to defend Europe.

Whichever interpretation you think the more likely, the appropriate response is the same. It is to press forward harder than ever with the attempt to make General Eisenhower's forces into a stronghold which the Russians will not dare to attack.

Court Fight Possible In Church Clash

TORONTO (CP)—A civil court battle today seemed possible in the clash between the rector of St. Barnabas Church and the Anglican Bishop of Toronto.

Rev. Harry Garbutt closed a Diocesan commission of differences with the announcement that his church would leave the Toronto diocese, although it would remain within the Church of England. He said the split would continue as long as Rt. Rev. A. R. Beverley was Bishop of Toronto.

Diocesan Chancellor R. H. Soward said Mr. Garbutt "couldn't possibly" carry through his intention.

He said: "Although the church buildings are vested in the name of the congregation, they are subject to the control of the bishop. If St. Barnabas should secede from the Diocese, the synod would take civil steps to recover its property."

Commission upset climaxed a six-month quarrel which began in January this year when William Funk was elected people's warden—a member of the three-man church council with the rector and the rector's warden.

A vestry meeting, objecting to Mr. Funk's election on the grounds that he was not a member of St. Barnabas, asked him to resign by a vote of 600 to 18. Mr. Funk refused.

The dispute dragged on and Bishop Beverley appointed a commission of differences to study the matter. Witnesses before the commission charged that Mr. Garbutt had "admonished" parishioners for creating dissension and had told the congregation it could not attend communion while there was "malice and hatred" in the parish.

MARJORIE AND JAMES WATSON

NEW VICTORIANS

by Gwen Cash

James Watson says that the craft work now being done in the British Isles and Europe generally is equal to anything turned out in the glamorous days of the Renaissance. "It's a resurgence, a revolt against war, over-regulation and standardization," he declares. "Fabrics, silver, leather, pottery, they are all lovely, unique."

Born in South Africa of Scottish parents, Mr. Watson was educated in Glasgow as an engineer (mechanical and civil) and roamed the world since. En route to New Zealand some time ago, he passed through Victoria and liked it so much he decided to come back here to live. World War II intervened. He became public relations personnel manager for the Ministry of Labor in Scotland; spent long years unsnarling troubles between management and labor.

But always Victoria beckoned. When the war ended he brought Marjorie, the Scotch lass he'd married, out here. Again he was thwarted, this time by the Bank of England and the Foreign Exchange Control Board. They had to repack and go on to a sterling area, South Africa.

"But we couldn't stand the way things are going out there. Unless you have been there you can't believe how chaotic things are."

Mr. and Mrs. Watson live at 1616 Belmont Avenue. Mrs. Watson is nursing at Jubilee Hospital. She trained at the Edinburgh Royal and had had wide experience. Her particular hobby is gardening, in which she can't indulge just now as she and her husband are in an apartment. "Some day though, I hope!"

Among his other accomplishments, Mr. Watson speaks "the Doric" but not "the Gaelic." He's a connoisseur of Celtic silverware and craft arts generally. In the not too distant future he hopes to start an importing business in Victoria.

At the moment he is working in a china business in the city "to get the feel of the place."

HOME GARDEN

by Jack Beasfall

There are arguments for and against almost all theories on the culture of plants.

We have authorities who believe summer pruning of fruit trees to be essential to the production of high quality crops, and we also have the results of carefully-conducted experiments which show such practice to be detrimental.

Summing up 15 years of experiments on this continent and abroad, Auchter & Knapp (Orchard and Small Fruit Culture, 1939) conclude that "as a general rule dormant (winter) pruning over a period of years has been more satisfactory, when measured by tree growth and fruit yields, than summer pruning. . . young trees have not borne any earlier or larger crops. By summer pruning, considerable leaf surface is removed (therefore) less carbohydrates are formed and dwarfing (of the trees) results. In most experiments, yield from summer pruned trees has been less."

Opposed to this theory is that of H. Dunkin (Pruning Hardy Fruit Trees, 1934), who states: "Some years ago I conducted an experiment on spur-pruned apple trees in order to demonstrate the advantage, or otherwise, of summer pruning. The result was that summer pruning brought the trees into bearing three to four years earlier than trees pruned in winter only. In addition, it was found that summer pruned trees produced fruit of much better color than those not so treated."

"Summer pruning is now becoming a regular practice among the best modern fruit-growers (in England) because the necessity of producing a large percentage of fruit of the highest grade has become imperative owing to the exacting demands of consumers. . . The "exacting demands" of the home gardener's family would therefore suggest following a procedure which will give a quality greater than that of the commercial grades. The small amount of dwarfing which may result from summer pruning would not be noticeable in the home fruit garden."

Chinese Nationalists Unload Seized Ships

TAIPEI, Formosa. (Reuters).—Two freighters on the way to Communist China today were reported to be unloading in Nationalist ports after being seized at sea by the Chinese Nationalist navy.

The British-flagged merchantman Ethel Moller, seized early in June, is unloading at the Nationalist island outpost of Quemoy, three miles from Communist China, usually reliable sources said. The cargo was not known.

Press reports today said a Panamanian-registered ship, the Hollina, had also been seized and was being unloaded in a Formosan port. It was reported to be carrying a cargo of bicycles and motorcycles to Communist China.

Newspapers said the Hollina was not Panamanian but a Chinese Communist ship, registered under the Panamanian flag to escape seizure by the Nationalist navy.

LEARN—AND LIVE

FIRST AID

Following an enemy attack there will be many situations in which the public will have to act on their own initiative.

First Aid is a primary requirement . . . Lack of knowledge can result in confusion . . . Knowledge of what to do can, if acted upon quickly, save lives.

Casualties are caused mainly by blast—falling debris—shock—burns—radiation.

Explosion of an atomic bomb will greatly increase the known effects of high explosive weapons and introduce radiation problems.

. . . After an atomic explosion do not take chances with food and water in open containers.

. . . Do not start rumours.

IMMEDIATE FIRST AID

SHOCK—Lay patient flat on ground—wrap in blankets—apply hot water bottles—give tea or coffee with sugar—NO alcohol.

BURNS—First—treat as for shock; no hot water bottle to burned areas. Cover burned area with dry sterile dressings—no greasy substance. Give plenty of fluids to drink. Get medical aid as soon as possible. Do not remove clothing—Do not break blisters—Do not try to clean burns.

Complete rest is essential.

WOUNDS AND BRUISES—Stop bleeding . . . cover with sterile dressing—treat as for shock. Get in touch with First Aid Post as soon as possible.

HYSTERIA—People suffering from shock are likely to behave in a dazed manner. They must be controlled at once and kept apart from others as panic can easily spread. If possible move to a quiet place.

Watch for another bulletin in next week's newspaper.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

Compensations always lie where you'll find them if you try. Buster Bear— Poor Buster Bear. He was hungry. I suspect that he would have said that he was starving. Most very hungry folks say they are starving, and sometimes really think so. Buster wasn't quite so badly off as that, but he really was hungry. You see, he had a sore foot. He couldn't use it to dig roots with; he couldn't use it to pull over old logs and tear open old stumps after ants and mice; he couldn't use it to climb up a tree in which the bees were storing up honey.

That was the greatest disappointment of all. Buster could have sat down and cried when he found that bee tree and couldn't get the honey. So it was that Buster got little to eat. However, he wasn't really starving. He even had one feast. Bad as he felt he must have grinned when he found that big mound there in the forest. With his good paw he dug down into it and stirred it up. Then he lay down beside it. Out poured the ants by hundreds and hundreds. He licked them up and smacked his lips, for ants are another favorite dish with Buster Bear.

As I have said before, Buster has a sweet tooth. He must have a sour tooth, too, for ants are sour. Then one day Buster Bear remembered something. He wondered why he hadn't remembered it before. He licked his lips and his mouth watered just thinking about the feast he could have in spite of his sore paw. He wasted no time. He limped off straight for a pasture. Blueberries must be ripe. And blueberries grow in the pasture. He tried to hurry. He limped along as fast as he could on three feet. Blacky the Crow saw him. "Wonder where that black rascal is going now. He seems to be in a hurry."

So Blacky followed, flying from tree to tree behind Buster. When Buster reached the edge of the pasture, he stopped. He stood up to his full height. You know he can stand up just like a man. For a long time he stood there just looking and listening. Buster was looking to make sure that there were no two-legged human folk.

The breeze came dancing across the pasture. They tickled his nose with all the odors they had picked up on the way. There was none of the hated man smell among these.

ENJOYS REAL FEED

Buster limped forward among the bushes. Almost at once he came to a big bush that was fairly blue with luscious, big berries. Buster sighed happily. He sat up beside that bush. The way those berries disappeared was something to see. He stripped them off that bush greedily. He didn't mind getting some leaves and bits of stick with them. Those berries were going to help wonderfully while other food was hard to get because of the sore paw.

Four-Plane Crash In Ont. Kills One

CENTRALIA, Ont. (CP)—One air force flying instructor was killed and three escaped uninjured following a four-plane mid-air collision of four Harvard training planes Friday in the Dashwood area, 32 miles northwest of London.

The dead pilot's name was withheld pending notification to next of kin.

Flying Officers E. D. G. Price, D. E. Donaldson of Lethbridge, Alta., and D. T. Rivoire of Ottawa all were able to land their planes.

Deserter Shot In Burglary Scuffle

WINDSOR (CP)—An 18-year old youth, termed by police a Canadian army deserter, was shot and wounded seriously today in a scuffle following an early-morning break-in in midtown Windsor.

Detective Ted Lepage grappled with Mike Wachoski of Fort William when he tried to escape. Lepage fired two warning shots, then fired the shot which wounded Wachoski.

The fleeing man was dressed in the uniform of a private of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

East-West German Trade Pact Signed

BERLIN (AP)—Western Germany and the Soviet Zone Friday night approved a $100,000,000 trade agreement. They left it to the four occupying powers to work out a guarantee for unhampered movement of goods through the Russian zone.

The new agreement means that east-west trade probably will be resumed shortly, authoritative sources said. The old trade pact expired Tuesday, halting the daily exchange of $250,000 worth of goods between the western and eastern zones.

Canada Builds More Houses In 5 Months

OTTAWA (CP)—More houses were completed in the first five months of this year than in the corresponding period of 1950, the bureau of statistics reports.

However, in that period, fewer houses were started and fewer houses were under construction than in 1950.

From Jan. 1 to May 31, the number of houses completed totalled 32,085 compared with 29,441 in the corresponding months of 1950.

Comparisons by areas, with the figures for 1950 in brackets, were:

Ontario 13,585 (9,925); Quebec, 10,653 (9,934); Prairie provinces, 3,736 (4,678); British Columbia, 2,934 (2,723); Maritime provinces, 2,368 (1,876); and Newfoundland, 409 (305).

Starts in the period were: Ontario, 12,242 (9,306); Quebec, 9,105 (11,588); Prairie provinces, 3,746 (4,696); British Columbia, 2,495 (2,724); Maritime provinces, 1,031 (1,480); and Newfoundland 314 (290).

The total number under construction at the end of May was 55,903 compared with 58,130 at the corresponding date in 1950.

More Lumber Shipped Out

Lumber shipments to the United Kingdom continue to dominate the Victoria deep-sea shipping reports.

The Temple Line freighter Temple Inn has left Ogden Point with 1,500,000 board feet of lumber for U.K. ports, while another British registry vessel, the Tridale, was in today for lumber loading at Ogden Point and Cowichan Bay, according to King Bros. shipping agents.

Ritner Consolidated Ltd. are expecting St. Corbieres, of the Donaldson Line, from Liverpool and Glasgow, via San Francisco, with a general cargo for discharge at Ogden Point on July 11. Due on the same day is St. Topa Topa, for Ogden Point loading of 500,000 feet of lumber destined for Okinawa.

Take Liberal Head From Purge List

TOKYO (Reuters)—The chairman of the Japanese government's screening commission on purged war leaders said today it is certain Liberal Party leader Ichiro Hatoyama will be removed from the purge list. Hatoyama, former minister of education, is considered a likely successor to the present prime minister, Shigeru Yoshida, when he is freed from purge restrictions.

Third Demand Reds Return U.S. Ships

WASHINGTON (UP)—The U.S. has demanded for the third time that Russia return "immediately" 672 lend-lease ships.

The U.S. also asked, for the second time, that Russia submit to arbitration its dispute with the U.S. over a cash payment for other goods which the Soviet Union received under wartime lend-lease.

B.C. Gold Output Is On Decline, Report Reveals

Gold production in British Columbia is on the decline, according to statistical information just compiled and released through the office of Trade and Industry Minister Leslie H. Eyres.

Gold produced in this province during the year's first quarter amounted to 89,687 fine ounces. Last year, for the corresponding period, the output was measured at 105,100 fine ounces; in 1949, 103,412 fine ounces, and in 1948, 105,336 fine ounces.

Production of 22,482 fine ounces of gold during April represented a 13.4 per cent decline over that mined during April, 1950.

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

Today's hand would not be particularly interesting at rubber bridge. South would lose a heart and a diamond very cheerfully, scoring the game and rubber.

In tournament bridge there is a different story to tell. There is no reason for South to be very cheerful about making 11 tricks. Everybody who holds the South cards will do the same, but the swindler who manages to steal a 12th trick will be richly rewarded.

One South player found a way to put the ace of diamonds to sleep. It must be admitted that he got a little co-operation from East, but the plot was neat all the same.

West opened the deuce of hearts, dummy played low, and East won with the king. This ten, but he made the mistake of playing low. South won with the queen of diamonds and led the nine of spades to dummy's queen. The queen of hearts was returned. East put up the ace, and South ruffed with the jack. South next tried out the clubs, discovering that he could discard a low diamond on dummy's fourth club.

Dummy then led a low heart, and South ruffed with the king. The jack of hearts fell on this trick—which was exactly what South had been working for. Now South could lead the carefully preserved five of spades to dummy's six, and the established nine of hearts could be cashed to discard declarer's last diamond.

On the TEE TOPICS

By BILL WALKER

Gorge Vale Golf Club members are perturbed over the remark accredited to secretary Joe Howat of the British Columbia Golf Association that "two places are open on this year's four-man Willingdon Cup team."

It goes without saying that the two places already filled belong to B.C. Amateur Canadian champion Bill Mawhinney and B.C. Closed titlist Walt McElroy.

We say it goes without saying but it has already been said, and by Mr. Howat, too, providing of course Mawhinney, currently competing in the Canadian Open, and McElroy, do not disappear in a sand trap before the cup trials.

But what Gorge Vale members want to know is "where does that leave Bob Fleming?" And for good reason.

If any Victorian is picked and we'll wager one overworked wedge against a divot that no more than one Victorian will be chosen (and that is no rumor) the honor must go to the 20-year-old Gorge Vale star. And that glory should go to Fleming above McElroy, whom Fleming knocked off in the B.C. Amateur. His season's record is better than anything Vancouver can match outside of Mawhinney.

Speaking of Mawhinney, it has become quite evident in recent years that Bill is a terror in his own back yard but is just another golfer when he comes to Victoria.

It should also be noted that outside of these top three, the way is still open for any one of three Victorians to steal the other cup berth from the mainland, that is, if the association can see its previously narrow way clear to put TWO islanders on the squad. Gordon Verley, Bill McColl and Vic Painter finished four, five and six in that order in the Closed and ahead of Mawhinney.

It is indeed a sore point in city golf circles how so often our dividers have been overlooked by the selection committee, especially when they have been proven equal to the mainland variety. The case of Painter a few years ago is a prime example.

However, Vic isn't one to worry over a grudge and he'll be in there firing come Aug. 4 and 5, along with McColl, who also has the necessary experience mentioned as an attribute for a spot on the representative unit.

Automatic selection for places on the B.C. women's interprovincial team are provincial champion Babs Davies and runner-up Margaret Todd. Mrs. Hugh McIntyre and Marjorie Todd qualified for the play-downs for the remaining two places, but failed to make the grade.

Mrs. Rena Edward and Mrs. Helen Cleat captured the final two berths.

One of the most surprising features of the recent B.C. Closed tourney was the high scores turned in on a course that was figured to be an easy mark for the big guns of golf. We wonder what the result would have been if the tourney had been played at the Gorge, a course that would prove mighty interesting some time they decide to play a major tournament thereon.

Pro Phil Taylor must have felt awfully gratified when he ached his tee shot at the Gyro hole-in-one tourney but imagine his chagrin the next day when an eight-year-old boy, Irvine Rogers, duplicated the feat.

Taking part in next week's 13th annual Washington State Golf Association Open and Amateur will be Bill Court, Colwood's assistant professional. Defending pro champion is Chuck Congden, amateur—Al Mengert.

Small entry in the city junior championships slated for Colwood Sunday only, brings to mind the point that little is being done to develop junior talent in the city. A summer clinic such as is a yearly feature at Gorge Vale under Joe Pryke would be the answer. The Gorge has seven entrants in the 12-man field, which proves the point. Secretary Leo Derman says the Saturday classes at the Gorge will be recommending in the immediate future.

Crack of the week is credited to Lloyd Mangrum, who, in describing the Oakmont course where the U.S. Open was played, said: "The fairways were so narrow, people had to walk in single file."

As we went to press Stan Leonard still had an outside chance of capturing the Canadian Open. Bobby Locke's failure to win the British Open came as no surprise to those who know the Portrush and Port Stewart courses. "They're tough," an informant told us, and Max Faulkner is one of the most underrated golfers in the British Isles.

DORIS HART EASY VICTOR IN WIMBLEDON NET FINAL

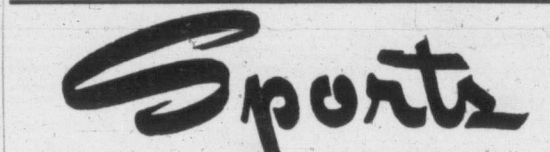

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (UP)—Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., achieved her long-time ambition to win the Wimbledon women's singles tennis title today by defeating Shirley Fry of Akron, O., 6-1, 6-0, in the final.

The 26-year-old Miss Hart, who is ranked second in the United States, had entered the all-England championship five times previously, she was beaten in the tournament final in 1947 and 1948.

The slim, blonde Florida miss beat Miss Fry, her bosom companion-off-court, in one of the shortest women's singles finals in the history of the tournament. A crowd of more than 15,000 jammed every available vantage point of the centre court stadium to watch the match.

Miss Hart required only 36 minutes to dispose of the jittery Miss Fry. The victory gave Miss Hart her 10th European women's tennis championship this year.

It marked the eighth consecutive year that an American won the Wimbledon women's singles crown.

Sport Week

By JOHN LARDNER

Max Schmeling, in his time, has attached his distinctive bouquet to quite a body of world thought. It is a remarkable showing for a fellow who began his professional life with little else in the form of assets than a kisser that vaguely resembled Jack Dempsey's, and a feeling that money in itself is not everything in this life (you also need something to keep it in).

Apart from his bloodhound's way with a dollar, Max has been a cultural influence. When Bill Stern, famous coiner of facts for the National Broadcasting Company, needed someone to accuse of having cut off Gottfried von Cramm's feet, he picked Schmeling. A natural choice. If there were any justice in the world, those feet would be hanging on Max's wall right now, crossed, beneath an elk's head, instead of taking up space in von Cramm's socks.

When Georges Carpentier, toward the end of the last war, was temporarily suspected in his native France of having been a collaborator, the Uhlans in the woodpile was Schmeling. On a winter's day in 1944, Carpentier was celebrating, with a straight face, his 50th birthday. Into his Paris brasserie, where the party was being held, came several uninvited Nazis. One of the latter was Schmeling, who threw an arm lovingly around Carpentier's neck. Another was a cameraman, who took a picture of the pair in this pose, and got it published in the Vichy press. Carpentier has a lot of trouble living that one down. He still spits when he thinks about it.

So then, last week Ray Robinson chopped down a light heavy-weight named Gerhard Hecht in Berlin and was toasted by the fans in the wine of the country, or, at any rate, the bottles in which the wine had been. It was a rugged sort of tribute. Ray behaved sensibly, and got underneath the ring.

Your correspondent once did the same thing during a demonstration in behalf of Pedro Montañez, in which empty flags of kola nut were thrown.

The Robinson riot, which was like old times in Germany, was carried out in the name of a slogan invented, or rather, made popular, by Schmeling. The slogan goes this way: if you don't watch them, Americans will beat innocent people to death by hitting them in the kidneys. Schmeling first whistled the patter in 1938, when Joe Louis hit him in 24 places that Max forgot about, and also in the kidneys, which Max made a note of.

In The Kidney, By Hecht

Perhaps Hecht had the Schmeling philosophy in mind—certainly the Berlin crowd did, for it yelled Max's name as it gamely hurled glassware at the middleweight champion of the world. Hecht was hit in the kidneys, as well as the eyes, ears, nose, and throat.

There is this to be said about the kidney punch, and it explains why referees in the United States seldom penalize people for using it, and then only when it is delivered in a clinch. Except from a clinch, the only way you can hit a man in the kidneys on purpose is to charter a motorcycle and get behind him before he can turn around. You can, of course, hit a man in the kidneys, and are likely to do so, whether you want to or not, if he turns his back on you.

Why did Schmeling turn his back on Louis, and why did Hecht turn his back on Robinson? For the same reason: a fox shows his spine to the hounds. But a fox has 25,000 miles to get lost in, while a fighter has an urge to travel can best go 24 feet.

And They Dance Divinely

As a matter of personal taste, I think Hecht's use of the gambit was wiser than Schmeling's. The younger fellow had a crowd armed with bottles behind him, as well as Robinson. Also, Robinson never saw the day he could hit as hard as Louis.

From time to time in the last few years, some of us who write about sports in this country have been in receipt of communications from Al Hoosman, a big and once promising heavyweight who has recently built his trade in Germany.

In a report to Uncle Dan Parker, the poet, Hoosman last week wrote that postwar German pugilism in general has become a matter of turning the back and registering agony. A sweet formula, too. It should go down in history as the Schmeling shimmy, or Maxie's spinal-column rag.

Vandermeer Fails To Stop Rainiers

Johnny Vandermeer, one-time Cincinnati ace who pitched two consecutive no-hitters for the Reds in 1938, made his debut with Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast League last night.

He lost 2 to 1 to Seattle Rainiers. Chet Johnson went in as a relief pitcher in the ninth. His younger brother, Earl, was the Seattle hurler and the winner.

In the seven and one-third innings he pitched, Vandermeer struck out 10. Runner-up Hollywood, four games behind Seattle, defeated Sacramento 5 to 2, getting all their runs in the first inning. Four of them on Clint Conatser's grand-slam homer.

San Francisco blanked San Diego 2 to 0 to take the nine-game series 7 to 2 and Los Angeles shut out Portland on Fred Baczewski's four-hitter.

The board of directors includes Percy Payne, T. Harrison, Bob Whyte, Roy Shields, Ralph Petersen and Tom Carson.

MEMORIAL TROPHY GIVEN TO JUNIOR FISH DERBY

In the junior fishing derby tomorrow at Saanich Inlet and in future derbies, tribute will be paid to a young fishing enthusiast who lost his life while pursuing his favorite sport. The Ronnie Sadler Perpetual Memorial Trophy will be given tomorrow for the first time. Donated to the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers Association by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sadler, the trophy is in memory of Ronnie Sadler, who was drowned while fishing in Beaver Lake in June.

The Frumto Fishing and Tackle Works have kindly promised to donate a plug or spoon to every youngster who competes in the derby. In addition, 25 other prizes will be presented to the young anglers. The affair is open to all kids between the ages of 12-17. Entry can be gained in the derby by buying a junior membership and a derby ticket.

Dick Had It All The Time

Barrett Returns To Haunt A's In Yakima Uniform

It frequently happens in baseball that a released player comes back to haunt the bejabs of his old club.

Sticking to convention Dick Barrett did that very thing to the Victoria Athletics last night; he pitched the Yakima Bears to a 9-2 win over the A's in his first route performance since he handed in his Victoria uniform.

Barrett, you will remember, was the fellow whose arm was too sore to allow him to hurl when he was on the local roster. The Yakima air must have cured his ailing flipper because he allowed only eight hits, struck out half a dozen batters and contributed a double to his own cause last night.

Kewp got an early lead from his bear mates. They jumped on Victoria starter Ron Smith in the second frame for six runs before John Brkich was rushed in to halt the carnage.

An error by Don Pries on Will Tiesiera's ground ball started the inning. Bears were quick to follow up the break and some stellar clutch hitting gave them the big cushion.

WEATHER STORM In the third inning it looked as if the A's were going to get to Barrett. Four singles, sandwiched around a force-out, sent two runners across but Barrett got Milt Martin on a ground ball to end the only Victoria threat.

Brkich gave up 10 hits after coming on in the second but spaced them for only three runs. He in turn was replaced in the eighth by first baseman Hal Jackson, who took to the mound in an effort to give the weary Athletic mound staff a break.

BRILLHEART PROTESTS Vancouver Capilano won a protested 16-4 game over Tacoma Tigers as they went on a loud hitting spree. A protest was lodged by Tiger manager Jim Brillheart, who claimed that the Caps had too many men in uniform. The league ruling is that a team may have no more than 17 men dressed for a game. Bob Snyder was the winning hurler, notching his 17th victory.

BOOST LEAGUE LEAD

Aces Nip Cabbies On Ninth-Inning Marker

For the second night in a row the Senior A softballers came up with a 1-0 ball game. Last night Butler's Aces scored the run in the last of the ninth to break up a scoreless tie with Bluebird Cabs and move into a three-point lead in the standings.

The lone tally came when Gus Hilton beat out an infield scratch hit after one was out. Hal Yardley sacrificed him along and became the second out. Mickey Smith, who started this season behind the plate for the millmen, strode to the plate.

A hurried conference was held by the high command of the Cabbies as to whether an intentional pass should be given to Smith. After scanning the batting line-up for the next batter and stopping at John Furmston, manager Lloyd Jones decided to pitch to Smith.

Smith worked the count to two and one and then lashed out a line drive single to centre and Hilton scored from second with the winning run.

Up until the game broke up both starting hurlers, Dixie Harper of Bluebird Cabs and Furmston of the Aces, were locked up in a scoreless pitching duel.

HAD ONE-HITTER Harper had given up a single to Willie Benn in the second inning, and pitched hitless ball right up until Hilton's dump single. Furmston, on the other hand, had a no-hitter for five and two-thirds innings until Ray Brookband beat out an infield hit in the sixth.

SEVENTH WIN For Furmston it was his seventh win of the season against two losses, but last night the big fellow was in trouble all night. He issued eight walks and struck out nine which pulled him out of a lot of jams.

Odeon: Screening times: 1.37, 4.04, 6.31, 9.03
"Family Portrait" is not the feature picture at the Odeon. It holds the screen for only 26 minutes. But see it. See it if you have to come for miles and stand in line when you get there.

This is the picture Ian Dalrymple was commissioned to do as part of the film industry's contribution to the Festival of Britain—and the one for which John Greenwood did a musical score that has set London talking.

"Family Portrait" has no professional actors. No sets. No make-up. No plot. But it has Britain in every foot of it—sleeping and waking Britain, working and playing Britain, struggling and achieving Britain.

The pace is so slow that it may make some 'teen-age feet twitch restlessly under the seats. But its slowness is that of the plows in it, moving with nature's own unhurried calm over the furrowed Cotswolds, wide beneath an English sky.

Humphrey Jennings, who directed it, has tolled prodigiously to bring this composite portrait to the screen. And to the poetry of motion he has added the thrill of brilliant photography and inspired cutting.

Through it, moreover, runs music that Shakespeare would have loved. Sometimes gentle—as played over a shot of the full tide seen from the cliffs of Dover; sometimes stirring, as used over the emblazoned horse-guards sweeping out from Buckingham Palace; sometimes challenging, as the Queen Mary swings slowly round towards the sea; sometimes full of tension, as when a giant radar "cradle" sweeps the sky.

And always, just when there might be a danger of straying into sentiment, there is some subtle irony of background or foreground. A cricket match, for instance, is seen not on an elm-shaded village green, but against a huge gasometer. A harvest field is seen under a dismal rain.

Through it runs a 'rapier-like' unseen fight between tradition and inevitable change. And with the composer borrowing snatches of English and Vaughan Williams, there is no mincing of the present situation; no rose-colored spectacles; no false perspective. Neither is a single flag waved. Instead, as the commentary repeats three times, "the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof."

The growth towards the stature of commonwealth is symbolized by a single shot—in which the camera holds the shoreline, then sweeps into a sunlit sea to hold only sky and water, with a lone seagull wheeling to the skyline.

Also in the Odeon program is a feature called "The House on Telegraph Hill." It has Bill Lundigan and Richard Basehart, and despite some hauntingly sensitive acting by Valentina Cortesa, it is so nerve-racking and depressing for a summer evening. The first spoken words in this film are, in fact, something of an indication of the rest of it: "None of us will ever get out of here alive!"

Virginia Hill Has Smile For Photographers

SEATTLE (UP)—Stormy Virginia Hill arrived in Seattle today as sweet as cherry pie. And she even smiled for photographers.

Miss Hill was en route to Spokane, Wash., where federal tax agents have seized her luxurious home. Her attitude toward newsmen here was a complete turnaround from what it had been in El Paso, Tex.; Denver and Salt Lake City Friday.

She said she was tired from the trip and explained that curious crowds that met her nearly everywhere she went were the main reason she got mad.

"I would have been better off if I'd robbed a bank," the gangster's girl friend said. "I've done nothing wrong. I can't understand why everyone keeps hounding me."

A revenue agent, meanwhile, was stationed in her fashionable $35,000 Spokane house and Stanley Forequist, chief of the Spokane revenue office, said a $160,000 lien had been filed against the underworld queen for unpaid income taxes from 1944 to 1946.

Under California law they needed to wait only a year before getting the final decree, but didn't go after it until yesterday because, Quine said, "nobody advised us we had to do so."

HOLLYWOOD REVIEW

Jimmy Cagney Turning From Gangster To Newspaperman

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—You probably never thought it would happen, but James Cagney is muscling out of the mob.

"Yes, I'm going straight," grinned the actor, without an ounce of menace. He admitted that he'll probably never do another gangster picture.

This marks the end of an era. Cagney was perhaps the screen's best-known mobster. His preeminence in the field dated back to "Public Enemy," which made him a star just 20 years ago. Although he made many non-criminal pictures, he was still firmly identified as a mug. In two of his last three pictures he portrayed a gunman.

"The gangster pictures were representative of an era," he observed. "But that era is over now. The Kefauver hearings on television helped end it. Nowadays if you did a picture about gangsters, you'd have to show the nation-wide aspects of the racket."

Also, today's crime pictures might reasonably show the traffic in dope and its sale to 'teen-agers.

Cagney is making the transition from gangsterism with a newspaper role in "Come Fill the Cup."

After the film is over, the actor will return to his farm at Martha's Vineyard, Mass.

CAPSULE REVIEW
In a hilarious moment of "Here Comes the Groom," a character exclaims, "This is better than television." The remark is apt. If Hollywood had more pictures like this, it would have less worries about the upstart industry.

This film is one of Bing Crosby's best, combining enough elements of entertainment to please the most jaded movie goer. The plot is a romantic mix-up with the groaner, Jane Wyman, Alexis Smith and Franchot Tone. Illogical? Yes, but still lots of fun. A needed assist to Crosby's film career.

Comedian Plays Lawyer Role Well
SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UP)—Comedian Jerry Lester saved himself an attorney's fee and dental bills by playing lawyer in superior court.

Lester pleaded his own case and won after his wife brought him to court seeking $30 a month on a $750 bill for straightening the teeth of their daughter, Judy, 13.

Mrs. Lester's divorce decree last May 1 provided that Lester had to pay 50 per cent of his income, plus unusual expenses.

"Every kid in Judy's class is having it done now," the comedian told Superior Judge Orlando H. Rhodes. "Unusual is when no one else is doing it."

Rhodes ruled in Lester's favor after his ex-wife testified that her other two children will need the same work later.

By DENNY ROYD

Congratulations to Jack Roach and Ted Bailey of the Victoria Gun Club for their fine showings in the B.C. trap championships at Vancouver earlier this week. Roach potted 99 clays out of 100 to annex the singles championship. It was the second time he has won the crown. He also captured the all-round high gun and tied in the 50-bird handicap but lost the shoot-off to Hal Straight of Vancouver.

Bailey won the B.C. doubles title after a gruelling four-way shoot-off.

Next big shooter's event is the Vancouver Island Skeet championships to be held at Victoria Gun Club July 14 and 15. A good number of entrants is expected from across the border. N.S.A. and P.I.A. rules will govern all events.

P.C.H.L. Directors Discuss Merger Monday

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Coast Hockey League directors Friday said they will probably welcome an offer from Edmonton and Calgary to join the professional circuit, provided transportation costs are not too much.

This was the reaction among officials following a meeting in Calgary Thursday between the league's directors and Al Leader of Seattle, president of the Coast League.

Leader returned Friday and will meet Coast League directors Monday to make his formal report on the prairie proposal.

Coley Hall, owner of Vancouver Canucks, and Kenny MacKenzie, owner of New Westminster Royals, said they were pleased with the idea of the two Alberta cities joining.

"It would mean a great deal to hockey both here and on the prairies," said MacKenzie.

Sticky Wicket Hurts England In Test Match

MANCHESTER (Reuters) — Trapped on a difficult drying wicket, England lost six wickets for 114 this morning in the third test against South Africa.

At the lunch interval, there were 164 for seven in reply to South Africa's first-innings 158, made Thursday. Play was washed out by rain yesterday.

With 50 runs for one wicket on the board at Thursday's close, the Britons might have complained about their luck in finding the pitch so tricky today. But they could consider themselves lucky that South Africa did not bowl better.

Athol Rowan, the off spinner, claimed three of the wickets which fell before the interval. But in contrast to his usual accuracy, he bowled numerous half volleys and some long hops to captain Freddie Brown.

Brown, coming in after the fourth wicket had gone down for 91, hit a fighting 42 and with Willie Watson added 36 for the fifth wicket.

Star batsmen Len Hutton and Reg Simpson were out for 27 and 11 respectively.

BURKE HOLDS EDGE AS OPEN NEARS CLOSE

Leonard Near Enough To Win

TORONTO (CP)—A tip on the 1951 Canadian Open golf champion: He'll carry a name like Burke, Ferrier or Hawking—with a long-shot chance for Oliver, Ed Furgol, Leonard, Klein and Demaret.

That was the shape of things today as the 63 survivors of the original field of 192 headed out over Mississauga Golf Course on the final 18-hole round of the 72-hole test for a $15,000 pot.

Jack Burke, Jr., held the edge. The smiling Texan, darling of the gallery of some 4,000 yesterday, laughed off a sad three-over-par first nine to finish with a par 72 and 54-hole score of 204.

His fighting comeback gave him a two-stroke margin on defending champion Jim Ferrier of San Francisco and Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Texas, deadlocked in second place with 206 apiece.

MISSUS PUTT

Ferrier, opening-day pace-setter with 65, bounced back to a 69 yesterday from his second-day par-72. Hawkins blew a four-hole putt on the 18th hole which would put him one stroke off the leading pace.

The field now comprises 23

Canadians, 38 Americans, an Argentinean and a Hawaiian.

Ed (Porky) Oliver from Seattle turned into a threat with a sparkling third-round 67—best of the day—for 208 and fourth place.

Deadlocked at 209 were Stan

Leonard of Vancouver, leading Canadian, on a 72 yesterday; Ed Furgol of Royal Oak, Mich., on 72; and Chuck Klein of San Antonio, Tex., on 73. Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., shot a 72 for 210.

WEEKLY SERMON

Family Is Focal Point

One of the things that it is sad to contemplate as society has progressed from primitive to more complex and "civilized" organization is the decay, or decline, of the family in mutual ties and acceptance of responsibility.

A tragic aspect of the Communist domination of China is the apparent disruption of the family organization and loyalties, which constituted a basic element and strength in the life of the Chinese people. There the family dominated its individual members in a way, in which our western world with its greater emphasis on the individual might not approve.

It would have been well, however, if in our Christian lands there had been more of that intense family loyalty and cohesiveness which have characterized Chinese family life at its best.

Teen-Agers Are Greatest Problem

Typical of youngsters turned over to Family Children Service are these wistful boys who need normal home care and affection. Foster home problem is critical and becoming worse as more children are listed.

200 FOSTER HOMES WANTED

Homeless, Friendless Children Need 'Patient, Tactful Parents'

"We want homes and more homes."

The plea came from Miss Mildred Wright, director of Family Children Service, faced today with the urgent problem of finding foster homes and foster parents in Victoria for hundreds of neglected children.

As she disclosed the foster home problem to a Victoria Daily Times reporter at the new Spencer Home, headquarters of the Community Welfare Council, the telephone rang. It was from police reporting a child had been abandoned by her parents—adding another to the long list waiting for foster parents.

"There is no end to it," sighed Miss Wright. "More and more children are being turned over to us for placement in foster homes."

She said the need for foster homes in Victoria had never been so urgent and that between 150 and 200 foster parents were needed immediately.

Miss Wright explained that many of the children in need of homes are not necessarily up for adoption. They are without homes because their parents are unable to take care of them due to unfortunate circumstances. Their ages range from three to 17 years.

There are some, of course, who might be adopted later, she added.

Mrs. E. M. James, foster home supervisor, whose job is to seek out suitable homes for these children, said she found it more difficult to find homes for teenagers than any other age group.

"They are good children," she said, "but they have been tossed about from home to home so much that they think no one cares for them and are out to beat the world."

"These require patient and tactful parents," she added. "They don't want parents who will beat them. They have been beaten, beaten and beaten and have hardened with the blows and cuffs they have received."

She said it was also difficult finding suitable parents for children in other age groups.

"You can't very well place a rambunctious boy with a quiet and elderly couple," she said. "The home wouldn't last long."

From time to time, a child of Chinese or Indian parentage was in need of foster parents, Mrs. James said.

Parents have to come up to certain required standards before they take a child, Mrs. James said. They must also have an adequate income to take care of the child.

Mrs. James said the service carefully screens applicants before allotting children.

"We have found that many women want little girls for the sole purpose of dressing them and showing them off to their friends," she said. "We are not interested in these people."

"What we want are people who are ready to do a real service to the community and to themselves by providing a home for children who want love and security," she added. "People who will devote their time in guiding and directing children to become good citizens."

PAPAL GUARDS GIVEN GUNS

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Pope's Swiss Guards, moving with the times, are becoming dead shots with sub-machine guns. Ordinary rifles have replaced the guards' characteristic halberds while they are on night duty. But now the 450-year-old corps of 96 officers and men has added the sub-machine gun to its arsenal.

Author Of Mutiny On Bounty Fame, Norman Hall, Dies

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UP)—American author James Norman Hall, 64, died of a heart attack today at his home here where he spent half his life writing of his beloved South Sea Islands. Famed as co-author with the late Charles B. Nordhoff of "Mutiny On the Bounty," Hall had lived in the South Seas since 1920 and will be buried here.

He was a native of Colfax, Iowa. His wife is in Papeete. A son, Conrad, is in Hollywood, Calif., and a married daughter, Nancy, is en route to Tahiti by schooner with her husband and child.

In the First World War he was an original member of "Kitchener's Army." He later left the British service and joined the Lafayette Escadrille where he won fame for his reckless exploits.

YOUTH FOR CHRIST

Tonight at 8
EVANGELISTIC AUDITORIUM (BLANSHARD NEAR PANDORA)

By ART STOTT

If you're planning a wilderness holiday, make sure you won't get lost. You can't develop a sense of woodcraft all in a hurry, but you can do something to prepare yourself for the bafflement of the trails. Just go down to the offices of the B.C. Forest Service's parks branch. It's located in Weiler Building at Broughton and Government. Go through a front door that says you are entering two different departments, and then try to find the parks offices. If you make it, you're well on the way to developing that sense of direction so essential in the woods.

Arrival in the offices, past signs that inform you it's not a public thoroughfare, is good proof that you can find your way around. After that you're fit and proper to take to the hills. They can't be much harder to negotiate than the department itself.

IF, WITH YOUR pocket compass, Boy Scouts' handbook and that dyb-dyb-dyb spirit, you make the grade, you can try out your prowess further by locating offices in the Parliament Buildings and avoiding the guide at the entrance. That's a post-graduate course.

There isn't any diploma given for graduation, but you may feel confident that you could have qualified for the Lewis and Clark expedition, or at least helped Alexander MacKenzie overland to Bella Coola. Reaching British Columbia's parks should be no trick at all for you. And if you decide to holiday off the island, you'll find it plain driving up to Manning, about four hours out from Vancouver on the Hope-Princeton road. Any child with double-jointed elbows could do it.

THE HIGHWAYS' grand, in spite of the twists. Even at that the twists have signs telling you the speed at which you can get around them. They aren't banded like a speedway and there's a reason for that. The Hope-Princeton is an all-year road. In snowy winters, sharply banked curves act like toboggan slides. You can hit them and find yourself nestling into the ditch at the low side if the angle of incline is steep. Hence the shallow lift to the edge of the highway.

The park itself honors the memory of E. C. Manning, British Columbia's chief forester killed in a plane crash during the war years. To him is attributed much of the recreation consciousness of the forestry service section which caters to the legitimate outdoor pleasures of our citizens.

AT "PINE WOODS," where the trail strikes off for the fish-filled Lightning Lakes, you can find accommodation by the side of the Similkameen River. In the restaurant there, you'll meet Ben Klusysken, manager for the private interests running the establishment. They call him Mr. Ben. The Dutch surname is a little difficult to pronounce. You'll probably also meet Sheila Hunter and Dree Stewart, two U.B.C. girls who are helping guests to enjoy their meals with friendly service during the vacation period.

And you'll see some of Kaj (pronounced Ky) Nielsen's wood carvings that are masterpieces of art. Kaj did them to decorate the walls and the panel above the lodge mantle before coming to Victoria to return to private business.

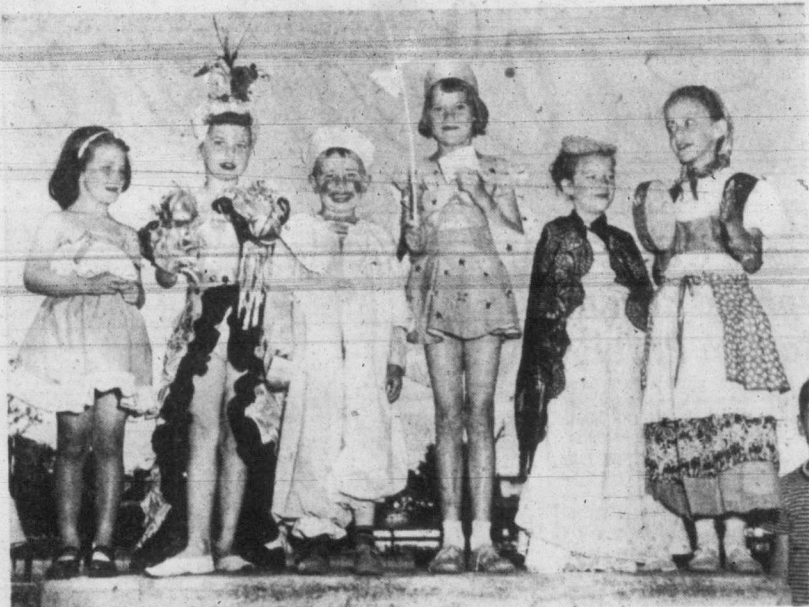

FOR ROADSIDE scenery, you'll find the drive up to Manning hard to beat. It has high mountains, thickly forested slopes, snow peaks, fast rivers and creeks, and deep ravines that will take your breath away—particularly if you approach them too quickly around a sharp bend.

And in the park itself you'll find nature largely unspoiled. You won't need the full 180,000-odd acres available during your holiday. A hike into the Lightning Lakes may be enough. But you can, if you want, take a number of trails the parks branch boys have built. One leads to "Old Frosty," a fine snow-capped peak.

The parks branch wants to encourage people to get out and walk to see the scenery. It wants to make it "Joe Blow's wilderness," where the guy with $10 can enjoy himself in surroundings that will tempt visitors with $10,000 to spend.

RIGHT NOW THE centre has a double purpose. It aims to meet the primary needs of traffic passing through. Eventually it will be developed more for those who want to spend holidays beside a stream or a lake. Beyond that, it has potentialities for winter ski use unexcelled anywhere in the Pacific Northwest.

Extensive development is a matter for the future. At present the park offers high altitude scenery—great mounds of it, with snow on top.

Summertime At The Playgrounds

Victoria's summer playground program opened this week and swung into high gear yesterday afternoon, when the first big event, "Dress-up Day," was held. Children in costumes, from left to right, Sheila Duggan, 6, dressed as Snow White; Patsy Elder, 8, in Carmen Miranda costume, which took first prize; Peter Swannell, 5, second prize, as a clown; Barbara Swannell, 9, third, as a fairy; Murna

Songhirst, 7, dressed as a Victorian lady, and Marlene Goertzen, 7, a gypsy. Enjoying Central Park's wading pool are, from left, Linda Hall, 8; May Johnson, 10; Lynn Griffin, 10; Neville Thynne, 10, and Kathleen Thynne, 12. Swimming classes start Tuesday at the Crystal pool at 9. Tennis classes begin Monday under Gordon Hartley.

Free Food Stall At City Market Has Its Opening This Morning

Attractive Mrs. Barbara Green crossed her fingers this morning as she opened the surplus food stall for Victoria's needy, at the Public Market. Donations which will be distributed from the stall late this afternoon were slow in coming in this morning, and she said she was prepared to spend her own money to keep the project alive.

Surveying the few bags of produce which had arrived by 10.30 this morning, the volunteer social worker made an anxious appeal by radio, press and word of mouth for all the surplus garden produce, tinned goods and fruits people might have.

She requested those who cannot bring their donations in to telephone Garden 3720 and the food would be picked up.

"The wholesalers have rather let me down, which doesn't make me feel too happy," said Mrs. Green. "However, I can't blame them. I realize they are not going to give food away if they can possibly sell it."

When Mrs. Green first sought city hall approval and rent-free stall at the market on a three-month trial, she said wholesalers had promised her their surplus.

"I have made arrangements, however, to purchase fruit and vegetables at wholesale prices myself, if there is not enough here to distribute by 4," she said. "I have spent $25 in the project already and am ready to spend up to $50."

Extreme dry weather with resultant slowing up of local garden crops is largely responsible for the limited surplus of food at the moment, Mrs. Green felt.

She hopes to have sufficient food for 50 people. Seventy-five cards were sent out by welfare agencies, in order to insure that about 50 would turn up, according to Mrs. Green.

Asked if she would continue after today, if sufficient surplus did not materialize, she replied she would.

"I intend to carry out the original plan of one Saturday a month for three months," Mrs. Green said.

Victorians Not Placing Fuel Orders

Coal-burning citizens of Victoria have short memories, shrinking fuel funds, or perhaps a combination of both, in the opinion of local coal dealers. Virtually no orders to "fill the bin" for next winter are being placed these days, they reported today.

Meanwhile, in Ottawa, Federal Mines Minister George Prudham joined fuel companies in urging Canadians to stock up on coal now, because supplies next winter are uncertain.

"It would be a wise precaution for those who have space to commence storing their winter coal now, as it is impossible to predict what difficulties may arise between now and next winter in getting to consumers all the coal needed," Mr. Prudham said.

Expanding defense efforts and the upward trend in Canada's industrial economy will contribute to heavier demands next winter, according to Mr. Prudham.

Thus far, appeals from dealers have fallen on deaf ears. "It's the worst year since before the war," said one Victoria coal dealer. "People remember last winter's mild treatment of Victoria, but they seem to have forgotten their frantic efforts to get fuel two winters ago."

Dealers place part of the blame for lagging orders on federal credit restrictions, even though term payment plans are available for steady customers.

'Road To The Isles' Theme For Visitors

The skirt of the pipes greeted incoming tourists in Victoria's Inner Harbor at 8.15 this morning, as pretty, 15-year-old Anita Baird, 2836 Inez Drive, revived a plan tried successfully four years ago.

U.S. tourists never forgot the novel greeting of girl pipers, so the tourist trade group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce made the necessary arrangements.

Passengers from M.V. Chinook crowded around the attractive piper in front of the Black Ball building this morning, taking pictures and requesting favorite selections.

On vacation from school, Miss Baird has donated her services, and will greet incoming visitors on C.P. boats and Black Ball ferries twice daily except Wednesday and Sunday during the summer season.

Kennedy Closes Beer Parlor

B.C. Liquor Commissioner W. F. Kennedy confirmed today that he had ordered a seven-day closure of the Lotus Hotel Beer parlor, which was closed for violation of a bookmaker who used the premises as business headquarters.

At the same time, the commissioner said he had no knowledge of four other charges concerning bookmaking activities in hotel beer parlors.

Vancouver police reportedly are preparing reports on these matters for submission to the liquor board. Mr. Kennedy must consider each one. If it is shown licensees had knowledge that bets were being recorded in their premises, similar closure orders will be issued.

'Fishy' Meeting

Directors of Victoria's Gyro Club will meet Monday evening at the Langford Lake home of Harold Butteris, it was announced today by Secretary William C. Hudson. Directors are reminded to bring along their bathing suits and fishing tackle.

Youths In Court After Wild Chase

Saanich Police Will Press New Charges Against 'Joyride' Pair

Arrested by Saanich police after a wild chase along East Saanich Road Friday night, Edward Diewold, 20, 1181 Yates Street, pleaded guilty in city police court today to taking the "souped-up" car of tourist Kenneth Allen, Olympia, Wash., without his consent.

His companion, William Malin, 19, 111 Ladysmith Street, pleaded not guilty to the same charge. Both were remanded to July 10, when Malin will be tried and Diewold sentenced. Bail of $500 was granted Malin.

Const. Robert Stewart, who claimed he had to drive at 85 and 90 miles per hour to keep up with the car, said Saanich police will lay charges of dangerous driving and driving without a license against Diewold.

When a Quadra Street resident notified city police of a car speeding on Quadra street, Saanich police were alerted. Constables Leslie Ledson and Stewart gave chase. The fleeing car failed to make a turn at Beaver Lake, and crashed into a ditch and fence.

BYSTANDER GIVES AID

Const. Ledson caught one of the pair. The other was knocked down by a pedestrian, Douglas Blackstock, 1523 Derby Road, and was arrested by Const. Stewart.

A bus driver reported to police that he was almost forced off the road by the racing car. Other motorists pulled off the road to avoid being hit.

The arrests were made before the loss was reported by the owner, who said in court today the car had been parked in the Yates Street theatre district. It had a special motor and overdrive, he said, and was capable of 120 miles per hour.

BEEF PRICES EASING OFF

Slight easing of the strain on family food budgets is expected shortly, a meat packer's representative said today.

Victoria prices on beef, reflecting a lowering of wholesale market quotations, will begin a gradual decline within a few days. Pork prices, not likely to go any higher, will hold steady until after the harvest season, he concluded.

Horsemeat—For Circus Not Public

Horsemeat—1,200 pounds of it—will be in Victoria Tuesday to keep the lions and tigers of Clyde Beatty's Circus up to their usual vigor. Floyd Lee, advance man for the circus, said today.

The circus opens a three-day stand here Wednesday and keeping the animals in food while they are here is Mr. Lee's special job.

"We're bringing the horsemeat in from Vancouver," he said, "and will put in another order while we are here."

"I've also ordered three tons of hay and 1,500 pounds of oats for each day we are here," he added.

Circus animals include: 50 horses, 35 lions and tigers, six elephants and four camels and several llamas. Mr. Lee, whose headquarters are at Shreveport, La., said there were about 400 people with the circus, but he does not have to worry about their food.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

Interest Centres Around Cary Castle Until October

By ELIZABETH FORBES

A story-book Princess and her Prince Charming will visit Victoria in October. And whether it is for a few hours or a few days, their official residence during that time will be a turretted castle, on top of Rockland Avenue hill, Victoria citizens know as Government House.

This will not be the first time that royalty has been in residence at Cary Castle, as it was called when first proclaimed the official residence of the governors in 1865, during the regime of Arthur Kennedy.

And if the mellowed brick walls and ivy outlined windows could talk, there would be many reminiscences of state dinners and balls that marked those outstanding occasions.

Well-remembered by everyone is the visit in 1939 of Princess Elizabeth's parents, Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, and there are still those living in the city who tell you of the visit 50 years ago of Queen Mother Mary and the late King George V, then the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall.

They were visitors at Cary Castle when it was still being rebuilt following a disastrous fire.

The Duke of Connaught, son of Queen Victoria, and the Duchess visited the castle on the hill in 1890 and again, with their daughter, Princess Patricia, in 1912, when the Duke was Governor-General of Canada.

A daughter of Queen Victoria, H.R.H. Princess Louise, with her husband the Marquis of Lorne, Governor-General of Canada, 1878 to 1888, visited Victoria before the Canadian Pacific Railway was built to the Pacific coast. They came by way of the United States.

Earlier Prince Charming Visits

The Duke of Windsor, when he was Prince of Wales, stayed at Government House in the course of a Canadian tour and while he was in residence there were parties, dinners and dances. The Prince loved to dance and there are many feminine members of Victoria's social set who today are able to tell their children: "Once upon a time I danced with the Prince of Wales."

Last member of the Royal Family to visit Victoria was H.R.H. the Duke of Kent, an uncle of Princess Elizabeth, who flew here in the summer of 1941, while on active duty with the R.A.F. He was killed in an air accident in Northern Scotland just a year later.

Among other distinguished guests at Government House have been the Marquis and Marchioness of Dufferin and Ava, Lord and Lady Aberdeen, Lord and Lady Jellicoe, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, Lord and Lady Byng, Lord and Lady Bessborough, Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir, the Duke of Athlone and Princess Alice, and Viscount Alexander of Tunis and Lady Alexander.

Feminine Victoria Excited

So far, no official program has been released for the visit of H.R.H. Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip to Victoria, but feminine hearts are a-flutter and there have been many questions flying back and forth as members of the social set keep their fingers crossed and hope that, if there is a reception or a ball, that they will be among the lucky few who will receive invitations.

No doubt in the seclusion of their boudoirs many young matrons are practising the curtsy. Down to the floor, back straight, head slightly bowed.

There have been questions too as to what will be the proper form of address, if one was among the favored few who will be presented to Princess Elizabeth.

So far, no one knows the answer. But in the meantime this little story of a British Columbia boy who recently met H.R.H. Princess Margaret is of interest.

He is Second Officer Fullerton, of the Ss. Lowland, a British ship that plies the Mediterranean and up to the British Isles, and at London undergoing repairs.

He received a card to a ball, given at the Hurlingham Club, and attended by over 500 guests, as a member of the Contingent Club Juniors (Victoria League), of which Princess Margaret is the honorary president.

In the party presented to the Royal Princess were eight visitors from South Africa, one from New Zealand, one from Australia and the West Vancouver lad.

The ball began about 10 and continued until 4 in the morning. The young group met the princess after they had seen her in the main ballroom and she had dined.

They were instructed to bow or curtsy and say "Good evening, Mam."

Victorian Meets Guides In Fiji Islands, England

District Commissioner Mrs. S. C. Rogers.

"A trip to the other side of the world makes one realize how international the Girl Guides' organization has become," said Mrs. S. C. Rogers, a north district commissioner, who arrived home this week following a holiday trip to England, Australia and New Zealand.

"Word is flashed ahead to each commissioner prior to a visitor's arrival in order that they may be met at the docks," she said.

En route to Australia Mrs. Rogers was greeted by commissioners in Fiji and at Honolulu.

"They have excellent Guide organizations in both places for both native and English-speaking girls. They do a marvellous work," she said.

In Sydney, Australia, the Victorian spoke to many Guide groups and later addressed groups in New Zealand.

"I was particularly impressed with a group I met in a camp not far from Auckland," said Mrs. Rogers, "the accommodations were very fine, the uniforms of the Guides particularly smart. I imagine the camp would easily hold 200 girls."

Although she only touched at points in India, France and Italy, she was met by district commissioners in each town or city.

Following arrival in England, where she visited relatives and friends, Mrs. Rogers addressed many groups of the organization.

An incident at the opening of the British Industrial Fair holds a particularly pleasant memory for the energetic woman.

She was told guests at the opening would be there by invitation only and that the King and Queen would be present. Her family urged her to wear her Canadian uniform. She did so, and was immediately recognized by the Queen.

"She gave me a warm smile and a gracious bow," Mrs. Rogers said.

Traveling since last November, Mrs. Rogers expressed her delight in returning to this city.

"Wherever I've been on my trip," she said, "I've not found one place I'd rather live."

Weddings, Engagements And Garden Parties Crowd Social Calendar

Two of Victoria's major summer interests—matrimony and garden parties—vie for top interest on this page today.

Many Victorians will be attending garden fetes in and around the city in the next weeks, outstanding among them the garden party planned by St. Andrew's Church at Sidney next Wednesday afternoon, and on the following Wednesday, July 18, the one at Arlow Farm, Royal Oak, sponsored by the women's committee to Victoria Symphony Society.

One of Victoria's charming daughters, Miss Patsy Jordan, returned to the city to be married this afternoon; a well-known girls' work enthusiast, Maude Hammond, also chose this afternoon for her wedding.

Other week-end news includes the announcement of the engagement of Miss Winnifred Margaret Myers to Mr. Mervyn Albert Gibson.

Clouds Of Organdie Create Gowns For Bride And Her Two Attendants

White and pastel-hued organdie gowns worn by the dark-haired bride and her attendants resembled the billowing clouds in this afternoon's summer sky when Patricia Imogene Jordan walked up the aisle to meet her groom, John A. Pickford, and to repeat nuptial vows with him before Father LeSanne in Our Lady of Lourdes Church.

Capt. and Mrs. E. F. Jordan, 1359 St. Patrick Street, are parents of the bride, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pickford, 124 Moss Street.

Heirloom diamond and sapphire drop earrings were the exquisite accessories worn by the bride with her wedding gown, designed with jacket of chantilly lace in delicate leaf pattern, fashioned with tiny Mandarin collar and long slender sleeves. The strapless gown featured a fitted bodice of lace, repeated in the ankle-touching overskirt of matching lace.

Beneath the lace skirt three flounces of white organdie were revealed in front and at the back, eight flounces were graduated to form a graceful oval-shaped train.

TRADITIONAL BLOSSOMS

Folds of organdie were fashioned to create a close-fitting helmet, touched with clusters of orange blossoms at each ear to hold her veil of illusion net.

To complete the all-white theme the bride carried a bouquet of white gladioli blossoms intermingled with slender sprays of ivy. Capt. Jordan gave his daughter in marriage.

Like twin gladioli blossoms were the orchid and yellow-toned fluffy organdie gowns worn by bridal attendants, Mrs. Peter Graham, who came from Vancouver for the occasion, and Miss Dianne Cox, who came by plane from Toronto. With their gowns, designed with full, soft shawl-collars to "create" off-the-shoulder effects, they wore matching wide picture hats and mitts. Their bouquets were of contrasting yellow and mauve gladioli.

The groom chose his brother,

Jim Pickford, as best man, and Alan and Graham Cox, as ushers.

Traditional wedding music was played by organist Mrs. L. Gill. Standard baskets of gleaming white gladioli, carnations and clusters of delphiniums set the scene in the bright sunroom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Cox, Joan Crescent, where the bridal pair received their guests.

Later, in the drawing room, Maj. S. H. Okell proposed the toast and the newlyweds cut a three-tier cake topped with a slender silver vase filled with rosebuds. The table was set with hand-made lace cloth and lighted white candles in silver holders.

The couple left on a honeymoon trip to western United States and on their return to this province will make their home in Vancouver. For traveling the bride chose a three-piece suit of sweet pea blue wool gabardine, with hat of navy and white, and navy blue shoes and companion purse.

The new Mrs. Pickford is a graduate of Vancouver General Hospital and received her B. of Sc. degree in nursing from University of British Columbia. She belongs to the alumnae of Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority. Mr. Pickford received his degree of B. of Sc. in forestry, also B.A. of commerce from University of British Columbia and is an affiliate of Phi Kappa Pi fraternity.

In the city to attend the wedding were the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. House, Mobile, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Tretheway, Abbotsford, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Graham, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hammond, Mrs. W. G. Jordan, Dolly, May and Winnifred; Dr. and Mrs. W. Evans, Miss Frances Turnbull, Miss Barbara Elvidge, Miss Clara Gould, Mrs. Helen Johnson and Lois, Miss Mary Bean-Brown, Miss Margaret Carter, Miss Jane Graham, Mr. Bruce Boyd, Mr. George Robertson, all of Vancouver.

Arlow Farm, Sayward Road, Saanich, attractive home of Capt. and Mrs. Massy Gooden, is setting for a garden party on Wednesday, July 18, sponsored by the women's committee of Victoria Symphony Society. On the flower-framed patio shown above a fur fashion show will be presented by a Vancouver firm, and afternoon tea will be served in the guest house with tables set on the lawn where there is a view of sea and mountains. A special bus will leave Coach Lines depot at 3. Members of the Woman's committee shown above are, left to right, Mrs. Arch L. Maude Hammond And Charles Gordon United In Marriage This Afternoon

Many out-of-town and Victoria guests attended the wedding reception this afternoon at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Gordon following their marriage ceremony at 1.30 conducted by Dr. A. E. Whitehouse, who dedicated the new home.

The bride, the former Alice Maude Hammond, is founder of Beta Sigma Phi in Victoria.

For the ceremony the bride was gowned in an afternoon

formal of Queen's blue crepe designed with dainty lace peplum that extended at the back to a diamond point at the hemline. The bodice was created with short sleeves and yoke of lace. Her close-fitting hat with blue flower trim, single strand of pearls, and white gloves complemented her ensemble. She pinned a single orchid to her gown.

Queen's blue crepe-and lace, styled similarly to that of the bride's, was worn by Miss Anne Fountain, Vancouver, the only attendant. With her gown she wore a pink-toned hat and corsage bouquet of gardenias and pink roses.

Alan Schiedemeyer was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon cut a four-tier wedding cake that centred the lace-covered table.

For the honeymoon motor trip to eastern provinces, Mrs. Gordon wore a soft green floral crepe dress, grey English gabardine coat, grey straw hat and corsage bouquet of pink roses.

Wedding In St. Mark's Church

Last evening at an 8 o'clock ceremony in St. Mark's Church, Carol Jean Winter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Winter, 981 Violet Avenue, became the bride of Randy L. Thomas Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Carter, 749 Jasmine Avenue. Rev. R. C. Willis officiated.

The bride entered the church wearing a gown of glistening white satin fashioned with web-like lace stand-up collar, yoke and long sleeves, and satin skirt that rippled in soft folds extending at the back into a regal train. A half halo held the long veil of illusion net. She was escorted by her father.

In pastel contrast, Mrs. S. Hayward wore a gown of turquoise nylon taffeta fashioned with bertha collar and full skirt. Her headdress was a tiara of matching taffeta with veil trim. She carried a bouquet of shell pink roses.

Donald Hawthorne was best man and Ross MacDonald an usher.

The newlyweds received guests at the home of the groom's mother, Jasmine Avenue, where, during the reception, they cut a two-tier wedding cake.

A navy blue tailleur with gardenia-white accessories and yellow rosebud corsage bouquet was worn by the bride for the honeymoon trip to the interior of this province.

An Early August Wedding Day

Asks Return Of Old-Time Chivalry And Consideration For All Women

LONDON. (CP) — Women "kicked around" and treated roughly cannot be expected to bring up the next generation properly, says Lady Rhys-Williams.

Addressing the annual conference of the National Association for Maternity and Child Welfare, she called for a return of the chivalry, courtesy and consideration which she said has been notably lacking since the Second World War, when women fought beside their men.

"Too often the children of today are allowed to think that everything is Mum's fault," said Lady Rhys-Williams, a member of the population investigation committee. More and more of the responsibilities of the home were being placed on mothers. The strain on most women is too great, she added. They are expected to be smart, to be ready to go out with their husbands, to have clean and beautiful homes, to keep the children clean and tidy and still look nice at all times. Speaking on the up-to-date problem of mothers who go out to work, she added: "Rise in the falling death rate of babies should go to the mothers, 'who have been ready to learn and put their learning into practise with love and care.'"

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Nicholson (left) will open their delightful All Bay Road, Sidney, V.I., home, "The Latch," and the gardens for a garden party next Wednesday afternoon, July 11, sponsored by St. Andrew's Church. The Altar Guild will serve afternoon tea and there will be stalls of home cooking and garden produce in charge of Mrs. Roy Brethour and Mrs. Lorna McKenzie, and white elephant stall in charge of Mrs. George Fernie and

SHOPPING GUIDE

More Fun Than A Picnic
To Explore A New Store!

By PENNY SAVER

Well, untie me little dancin' feet and call me soft shoe sayer, if I didn't find my way into two new stores this morning. One was a handsome drygoods establishment and the other a candy shop.

Felt like a tourist in the first store as I mingled with visitors from all over this continent. At one counter I found a number of women oohing and ahing over a little Scottish change sleeves and in delicate hues of creams, mauves, pinks and beiges. From $14.95 and up.

Dad or big brother comes back to the limelight for this next item. A genuine pigskin case designed to hold at least four shirts, for the traveling gent. The case sports a full-length front zipper opening, with leather tab and flap, and corded taffeta lining.

As an extra special gift, if you've saved $14.95's worth of pennies, the case is yours.

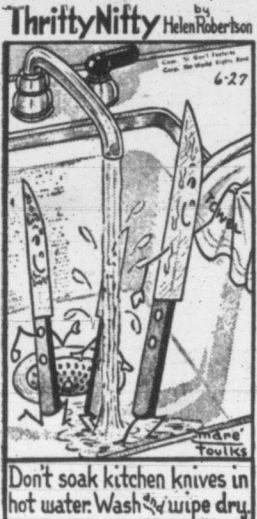

There is a new line of English-made hats and matching purses being shown in the new store. The hats I saw were of grey and cream headstooth check in cloche or rolled brim style with smart little "feed bag" purses in matching materials. Very chic and wearable, any season. For the hat, $6.95, and the purse, $7.95.

By the way, now that you've heard about the hats and bags I'll whisper about the matching coat. $98.50, and beautifully matching tulle at $75 (Call me dollar daffy and I'll not utter a sound!)

Pure linen tablecloths were arranged temptingly on their counters. Heavy cloths they were, of damask and basket weave, 60 by 80 inches, with matching 15-inch square napkins. In rich yellows, pinks, greys, greens and whites, and $7.50 is needed for the cloth and 49 pennies for the matching napkins.

Guest towels in the sturdy oatmeal weaves with delightful rainbow borders were tucked away in their own boxes at $2.30 a pair.

Fancy that! I've not left space for a bit of chit chat about the new candy shop. Ah, well! Will do that Monday.

Don't soak kitchen knives in hot water. Wash & wipe dry.

purse. My hat, it wasn't any larger than a minute but it was the style of the keeper of change that attracted the passers-by.

The little pouch of fine tartan wool is designed with expansion, gold-tinted opening, and atop it, to hold it securely closed, is a gold button cap. All that bit of fun for $1.95.

Blouses from Switzerland and Italy were catching milady's eye. The Swiss contribution was of sheerest crepe designed with pointed collar, short sleeves and hand embroidered at the pearl button opening. Price tag read $13.95, for the long or short-sleeved style.

WHY GROW OLD?

Sleep And Adequate Diet
Chase Away Dark Circles

Women and young girls, too, are always writing me to ask what to do about dark circles around the eyes.

There is no use denying the fact that this characteristic sometimes seems to run in families. However, loss of sleep, poor nutrition, lowered health, underweight, lack of exercise and tension, contribute to the condition. For instance, a young girl writes: "I am 16 years old and a sophomore in high school. Because of dates, parties, studies and other activities I often get no more than six hours sleep. I am never tired, but there are perpetual dark circles around my eyes. Is this caused by too little sleep or too much sleep?"

Of course this little lady is far under par when it comes to sleep. Girls this age can use nine hours shuteye with good results. When they habitually cut their sleep ration low they are not only undermining their beauty but their health. The average grownup person requires seven or eight hours sleep a night for best performance, and highest energy level.

Put yourself on a daily regime if you have dark circles. Get outdoors for some time each day. Indulge in mild exercises and deep breathing. See to it that you get eight to nine hours sleep. Take short rest periods during the day whenever possible. Avoid overfatigue in this way. Ten minutes only, a few times a day, can make a great difference. Be certain that your food intake is high in vitamins and minerals and the other essentials for best health.

Remember that even those women who do not usually have circles acquire them after a period of too little sleep and unhygienic living.

A makeup base will help in covering up the circles. Use one in a shade darker than your skin is normally.

If you would like to have my leaflet: "Puffs and lines under the eyes," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for Leaflet No. 60, to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Weaver Uses Dahlia Blooms
To Create Dyes For Rugs!

By FLORENCE LARINDE

Ever whipped up a potful of dahlia in your leisure hours? No? This delightful concoction won't make a serving for four, but it will create a very beautiful yellow dye.

Mrs. E. Hammond, who has made many hundreds of woven articles on her looms and then dyed them, stopped to chat a few moments with me yesterday and explained the wonders of vegetable dyes.

She is one of many now displaying woven articles at the annual national exhibition of hand weaving in Duke of Kent room at Empress Hotel. The exhibit continues until 10 o'clock this evening.

The art of vegetable dyeing is of course, not as crude or simple as I have led you to believe. It takes a great deal of understanding, chemical reaction to bring forth the desired dyes. Dyes, that will, with greater wear, become brighter through the years gaining new life as they age.

Dahlia, by the way, regardless of how many shades of vivid reds, oranges, they may be, will always produce a yellow dye.

On the other hand, if you gather sufficient salad berries, boil them, then strain the juice, you'll have a magnificent blue.

By adding the yellow stocks of the berries the resulting shade is green.

Weavers import madder cones from Europe. Somewhat like the vegetable garden pansy, the madder root after its cooking, brings forth a rich red dye.

If you've ever wondered what to do with old walnut husks you'll have a good use for them now if you are interested in dyeing materials. A finer deep brown dye you'll never find.

For rust-tones, so beautiful in autumn leaves, can be captured and produced by using a lichen dye.

You probably know about lichens, but I hadn't a clue about this hard, clinging plant, that is scraped from rocks and bark of trees.

Lichen taken from a tree bark produces quite a different dye to anything taken from the plant that holds to rock formation.

When you visit the hand-weaving exhibit this evening take a close look at the dyes on the various articles. You might be able to define the color's source. But you'll have to excuse me now, I've got a pot of old dahlia blooms on the stove!

To prove our point we present Franks 'N' Dumplings—as good eating as can be found at any price. The dish itself is almost as simple as the name, yet carries the sparkle of a new approach to a favorite food.

Frankfurters bubble merrily in a simple tomato sauce, subtly seasoned with onion and bay leaf. Then with the pot tightly covered, tender corn meal dumplings will stew to a feathery lightness, absorbing some of the rich tomato flavor that adds character to the dish.

Tourist Business May Break Records

By JIM KEACHE

It's too early to tell yet but indications are that this is going to be the biggest year since the war for local stores catering to U.S. tourists. Underlining the hints were figures released yesterday by tourist bureau chief George I. Warren showing about 20 per cent more tourists came here in the first half of 1951 as compared to 1950.

Rescue Youth From Bridge Jump Threat

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 22-year-old youth who climbed to the top of a tower of the San Francisco-Oakland bridge was rescued by bridge painters Friday night after threatening for nearly two hours to leap 470 feet to the waters below. The young man, identified as Joseph F. Bautista of Honolulu, was taken to the psychiatric ward of San Francisco Hospital after his rescuers had brought him to the main deck of the bridge.

Indo-China Worried

SAIGON, Indo-China (Reuters) — The Vietnam cabinet met in the rebel-threatened Tonkin delta to discuss the effect a cease-fire in Korea may have on Indo-China. The Vietnamese Press reported today. On the eve of the Kaesong meeting, Indo-China observers feared the Chinese Communists may turn their attention to Indo-China if peace comes to Korea.

U.S. Tariff Concession To Soviet Ended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. has served notice on Russia and four satellites it is cancelling all American tariff concessions on goods they ship to the U.S. This action was dictated by Congress, along with another move the State Department plans to take shortly, banning the importation of most furs from Russia and Communist China.

What effect the removal of tariff concessions will have could not be determined today, partly because of the length and variety of the list of goods involved. Department officials generally were skeptical that there would be any great change.

It was taken for granted that since the Russians have a government trade monopoly they will continue shipments, even at higher costs, if they decide they want the dollars the goods would bring.

Fishermen Attack Practice Bombing

The announced reopening of a practice bombing range for the R.C.A.F. off the west coast of Vancouver Island, has roused a storm of opposition in the fishing industry.

The triangular area off Long Beach, between Tofino and Ucluelet, used for bombing practice during the war, is a feeding ground supplying the best catches of spring and coho salmon, say spokesmen for the fishermen and fish companies.

It is reported that a formal protest against the plan is being prepared.

Burma, India Sign Friendship Treaty

RANGOON, Burma (Reuters) — Burma today signed a five-year treaty of friendship with India. An official announcement said the agreement was aimed at "strengthening and developing the many ties of friendship that bind the two countries and the maintenance of perpetual peace and friendship which exists between them."

Lord Holden Dies Of Heart Seizure

LONDON (CP) — Lord Holden, 52, deputy chairman and Speaker in the House of Lords, died suddenly here Friday night.

He was to have married Mrs. Constance Mackness, a widow, later this month. His fiancée was with him when he had a heart attack while visiting friends. Lord Holden joined the Labor Party in 1945 and two years later became the deputy chairman and Speaker of the House of Lords.

New Keepers Named To Two Lighthouses

Two Killed In Fire

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Two men died and eight others were injured Friday night in a fire that gutted a wooden dormitory occupied by 47 sleeping employees of Englewood Hospital. The hospital itself did not catch fire. Roused by an alarm, some of the men jumped out of windows. Others fled down the fire escape at the rear of the building.

HORSE MEAT

We've been mad enough about some horses after the race to take a bite out of them, but never eat 'em. Our solution of the meat problem is to ship all the horses across the line and keep our good Canadian beef home where it belongs on the table.

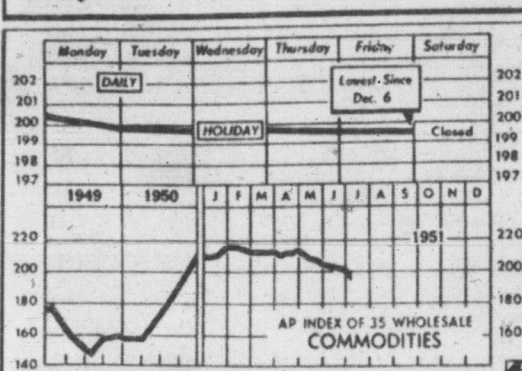

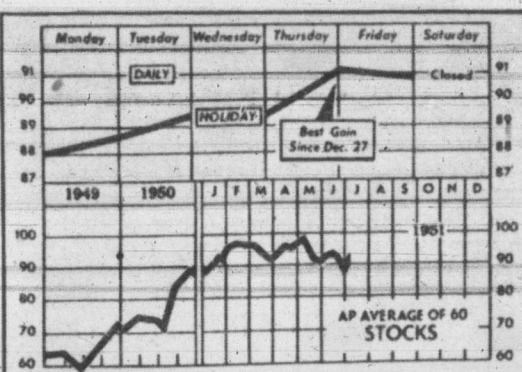

Here are horses of another color, the pasture is in beautiful Esquimalt.
No. 1—Three-bedroom home, automatic heat, nice garden lot, fine basement, all in apple pie order for $8,400.
No. 2—Attractive little bungalow with a glimpse of the sea. Price $3,250 for half cash.

NO MARE'S NEST

or horsefeathers. We could sell 50 homes in Esquimalt by the sea or other districts with honest people waiting to pay from $1,000 to $2,000 down. Why not see us and make some buyers happy and at the same time earn 6 per cent for beefsteak.

Stocks Rise As Commodities Drop

Registering second best weekly gain for this year, Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week rebounded sharply to 90.9 from 88.0 of previous week. Week's volume of trading was reduced substantially owing to July 4 holiday in U.S. Led by textiles and industrials, commodity index touched lowest level since Dec. 6, closing week at 199.5 against 200.4 in preceding period. This marked 10th straight decline in index. (AP wire-photo.)

ALBERTA OIL REPORT

Pacific Pete Stakes 2nd Northern Wildcat

(Special to The Times)

CALGARY — Pacific Petroleum staked a second northern wildcat this week. Latest venture is Pacific Allied Fort St. John, 96 miles west of Whitecourt. The Eureka well announced earlier is 30 miles northwest of Whitecourt. The St. John well is eight miles southeast of the town and 25 miles north and west of the Sunrise wells.

Angus No. 1 four miles south and west of Select Oils Chip Lake wet gas discovery has contacted Viking sand at 5,535 and is now coring at 5,539. Select Oils perforated for gas at 6,129-39 feet in the Lower Cretaceous. The well is being drilled by Angus Petroleum, subsidiary of Stewart Petroleum, on an 18-section land spread belonging to Stewart which gets 1,000,000 shares of Angus stock.

Canadian Delhi Cessford No. 5 looks enough like an oil discovery to demand pump and production equipment now moving in. On swab tests in Basal Cretaceous it rated 192 barrels a day. Drilled on Hudson Bay farmout, Delhi holds a little less than 50 per cent, Hudson Bay 50 per cent and A. G. Bailey Company a small interest. Out of five Cessford wells drilled Delhi has scored oil in No. 5 and gas in three others.

Chevron, Lancer and Transfield

New British Dominion has staked a wildcat in the Story Plain area, three and a half miles southwest of the Imperial Story discovery, and two miles northwest of dry hole Imperial Redwater Piccadilly. The venture is on a half section of free hold land, and drilling equipment is scheduled to be moved onto location next week.

Three wildcat abandonments are: Delhi Conroy, about three miles south of Pakowki Lake, finished drilling at 3,193 feet; Hudson's Bay Spark No. 5, about 10 miles south and a little east of gasser No. 3, completed at 2,649 feet; and Imperial Joseph Lake West, four miles west of the field.

Montana Power has filed application with U.S. Federal Power Commission for permit to build 70 mile line from the Pakowki reserves to Cut Bank where it will join present pipeline system. The 40,000,000 cubic feet a day line will be supplied by marketable reserves of 406 million cubic feet. About 18 miles of the new line will be in Alberta.

Prices Rise Steadily During Week Following Russia Peace Bid Slump

By BILL DANIELS

Canadian Press Staff Writer
Prices rolled quietly upward on stock markets this week, making a recovery from the previous week's setback.

After turning lower two weeks ago, prices dipped sharply last week as Russia's peace bid was announced. A recovery began steadily but at no time showing any extreme upward rush.

Trading, however, was at its slowest pace of the year as the sluggish dealings of the previous 19 weeks continued. Outlook for the future was said to be fairly bright but the trading slump that began in mid-February was by no means over.

As the week started, Canadian markets were celebrating the long Dominion Day week-end. In New York, mild buying support came into the market and prices posted a steady advance in quiet trading.

SELECTIVE BUYING

On Tuesday, Canadian markets took the lead from New York and under selective buying moved ahead. Leading issues moved ahead. Montreal stayed fairly mixed, with papers and golds higher and utilities lower. In New York prices continued Monday's steady advance.

Wednesday it was the U.S. market's turn for a holiday. With-out New York direction Canadian investors hesitated to take a stand.

Volume of the Toronto Stock Exchange of 742,000 shares was the least it has been since last Dec. 26. Prices on both Montreal and Toronto markets were mixed with small changes. Base metals made a little headway in Toronto.

New York traders came back to work on Thursday and that market chalked up its sharpest advance of the year. Buying interest was spread over a broad front and the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, in adding $1.70, showed its best increase since Dec. 27 last year.

BUYING SPREE

Canadian market men did not pay much attention to the American upsurge and prices edged slowly ahead. In the final half hour, however, a buying spree developed and by the close the Toronto industrial index had gained more than four points. Yesterday, Canadian markets continued their late upward drive but at a much slower rate. Most price changes were limited to fractions and trading was dull. New York, on the other hand, finally met downward pressure.

Unity Plea In Peron Address

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Juan D. Peron called on Argentines Friday to unite in defence of the country. In a country-wide broadcast he said enemies of Argentina are using news agencies, newspapers, radio and the movies to "blackmail us." He did not mention any of the enemies by name.

Eden Planning Visit To Canada This Month

LONDON (CP) — Anthony Eden, the British Conservative Party's No. 2 man, will sail for Canada late in July, it was learned Friday. He will be accompanied by Robert Carr, Conservative Member of Parliament for Mitcham, Surrey. Eden's secretary said Eden will stay with Vincent Massey, chancellor of the University of Toronto and former Canadian High Commissioner in London.

Child Riot Victim

INDORE, India (Reuters) — A 12-year-old girl was killed and 12 people injured in a Hindu-Muslim riot Friday in the town of Ujjain, near here, police said today. Police made 71 arrests in quelling the disturbance which developed out of a fight between a fruit vendor and a customer. A 24-hour curfew was imposed and the town was quiet.
